ROI DEFENDERS MOPPED UP BY MARINE FORCE

Seventh Army Division Seizes at Least One-Third of Kwajalein Islet.

By The Associated Press

American fighting men, moving relentlessly against the surprised Japanese defenders, closed in on the besieged Kwajalein atoll today in a successful flanking assault on the heart of the mandated Marshall islands.

Marines who captured Roi islet mopped up on enemy remnants in adjacent Namur as the mid-Pacific invasion campaign swept into the fourth day. Soldiers of the Seventh Army division seized at least a third of Kwajalein islet at the southern, and opposite, end of the big atoll.

Eyewitness accounts pictured Roi and Namur as littered with twisted, smoking debris of incessantly-bombarded installations, and with the bodies of hundreds of Japanese soldiers. But Roi gave the Americans a four-runway airfield from which new assaults on other enemy bases where the Nipponese apparently had expected the Marshalls invasion blow to fall.

Land-based Army and Navy bombers showed no letup in the systematic neutralization of the eastern Marshalls chain as ground forces fought for control of the excellent anchorage and air base at Kwajalein islet. There was no mention in yesterday's Pearl Harbor communique of any sea or air opposition.

No Ships Lost Yet

As yet, no losses among the hundreds of ships in the U. S. invasion fleet have been reported, and Admiral Nimitz reported troop casualties were light.

It is now apparent that the attack took the enemy completely by surprise," the central Pacific commander said. The weak resistance at Kwajalein, aside from attesting to the effectiveness of the pre-invasion bombardment, indicated the Japanese were not prepared to make a stand on the western line of the Marshalls.

Associated Press War Correspondent Alva Dopking, who landed at Namur with the Marines, said the Japanese "must have deluded themselves into believing we didn't have the power or the will to knife at the center of their Marshalls stronghold."

Roi was invaded Monday, and Kwajalein fell four hours later. New landings were made the following day on Namur and Kwajalein islets. Fall of Kwajalein, and with it some 30 dependent islets, appeared imminent.

Southwest Pacific

Allied forces made new progress in the southwest Pacific offensive against Madang, Japanese-held key to northern New Guinea, and in the Ramu valley were reported less than 35 miles from the big base. On the Solomons, Japanese troops fled into the mountains in an attempt to escape allied pincers. Many were believed to have died of starvation.

Japanese plane losses at Rabaul in January climbed to 567 planes probably destroyed. planes were knocked out on the battered base at the close of The latest attack cost four planes. A 5,000-ton freighter was sunk by at Hansa bay, northern Guinea.

Ground forces battling the Japanese on Bougainville threw the fight for the first time and knocked out 19 during an all-day assault on the east side of the Torokina mouth. At least 80 were killed.

Vital Pacific Base Captured in Less Than Day's Fighting

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The capture of the United States invasion base in the heart of the Marshalls was a tactical surprise so complete that the air base for bombers on Roi islet was captured in less than a day, threatened the Japanese with imminent loss of the 4,000-foot runway airfield at the northern end of Kwajalein, was overrun Tuesday.

Harding High Bond Drive Has Big Day

The Harding High school "buy a plane" bond drive hit a new high mark today when sales totaling $3,574 exceeded the total of all earlier sales in the campaign combined, boosting the total to $6,667.

This represents 44 per cent of the $15,000 goal needed to provide funds for the purchase of an Army training plane.

It was announced that bonds purchased through the schools will be handled through the women's division of the Marion county War Finance committee, now busy with a "Back Your Buddy With a Bond" drive aimed at putting a star in front of every name on the county honor roll at the courthouse. As a result, purchasers of bonds through the schools will be able to honor some service man or woman during the Buddy campaign.

The Harding drive is sponsored by the Student Council of which Charles Elliott is president. The committee in charge consists of Arlene Hill, chairman, Frank DeSanto, Elizabeth Kerns and Bob England.

According to Miss Isabelle Stump, faculty advisor for the campaign, cooperation from parents of students has made the drive a success so far.

Sisters from Waldo Enlist in WAVES

Miss Vera Doll Bender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy P. Bender of Waldo, enlisted in the WAVES, Monday. Miss Bender graduated from Waldo High school in 1938 and also graduated from the School of Nursing at Sawyer's Sanatorium. Later she served at the sanatorium as nurse in charge of physical therapy and occupational department. At the time she enlisted she was employed as bookkeeper at the Marion Engineer Depot.

She was a member of the Marion County Chorus and Orchestra and Marion Civic Orchestra.

Her sister, Evelyn Lucille Bender, joined the WAVES on Jan. 24, and will leave for Hunter College, New York, on Feb. 10, for basic training. Vera will leave for the same school about the first of March.

150,000 MEN HELD IN JAWS OF RED PINCERS

Stalin Announces Soviet Advance; Germans Lose Poland, Estonian Towns.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 3 — In a triumphant order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced today the joining of the first and second Ukrainian fronts, trapping 10 German divisions, after the German high command had acknowledged the loss of Lutsk (Luck) and Rovno in old Poland.

Stalin proclaimed the capture of Smela, rail center in the Dnieper bend, and said the two mighty Red armies of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin and Gen. Ivan S. Konev had made gains of up to 45 miles in a 100-mile break-through of the German lines.

"As a result of these operations troops of the second and first Ukrainian fronts joined up in the area of Zvenigorodka and Shpola and thus closed a ring of encirclement around an enemy group operating north of this line, numbering nine infantry and one tank divisions," Stalin announced in his proclamation, broadcast from Moscow.

Stalin did not mention Lutsk, 70 miles inside the pre-war Polish frontier, or Rovno, 30 miles west of the old border. Evacuation of these places had been admitted earlier in a sweeping acknowledgement of losses by the German high command, broadcast in the daily German communique.

To the north, meanwhile, the Russians had reached the Narova river within Estonia.

In the course of the Ukraine offensive, Stalin announced, "our troops captured more than 300 populated places. These included the towns of Zvenigorodka, Shpola, Smela, Bogoslav, Kanev and the large railway junctions of Dovrinskaya, Svetkova and Moronovka."

Evacuation of Smela had been admitted by the Germans last Saturday.

The Nazi withdrawal from Lutsk was surprising, since last previous reports from this sector had placed the fighting in the area of Rovno, 40 miles to the east, and there had been no indication Lutsk was menaced.

An earlier Berlin radio announcement said:

"In the course of German movements on the eastern front Rovno and Lutsk were abandoned by German troops yesterday. The German troops have taken up new positions west of the two towns."

Although the Russians themselves have not disclosed a new offensive in this region, Berlin reported last night an intensified Soviet drive had been launched and said the Red army had crossed the middle Gorin river which runs west of Rovno.

JAPS CAUGHT BY SURPRISE

American Blow at Marshalls Finds Japanese Defenders Off Guard.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The bold, massive stroke of Pacific forces into the heart of the Marshall islands apparently has isolated thousands of Japanese troops which now may be conquered at leisure or left to die of starvation.

These troops are pocketed on the chain of atolls which form the eastern limits of the Marshall group and in which the principal enemy bases are battered Wotje, Jaluit and Maloelap. They are believed to be heavily garrisoned, despite losses to steady American naval and air bombardment, for it was logical the Japanese should have expected an assault on that line.

This fact gives special significance to the statement by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, last night that the attack on Kwajalein "took the enemy completely by surprise."

Japs Caught Off Balance

The Japanese were both surprised and thrown off balance. And since what is happening in the Marshalls can well be repeated in the Caroline islands—next probable objective on the road to the Philippines—it may be their whole defense strategy in the central Pacific area has been disjointed.

The attack on the Marshalls already is coming to be regarded as one of the most brilliantly conceived and executed operations of the war. Judged by reports of "moderate losses" thus far it is gaining enormously important objectives at a cost relatively much lower than that of conquest of Tarawa in the Gilberts two months ago.

Pending official comment on the way the attack was developed, the assumption is the lessons of Tarawa were applied fully. This may account in part for the fact that while Tarawa was a frontal attack conquest of the Marshalls shapes up tactically as a flanking operation.

Admiral Nimitz and his staff apparently had two grand alternatives. They could strike directly at the Wotje-Jaluit-Maloelap atolls nearest Tarawa and other American bases in the Gilberts, or they could, if they had sufficient strength, neutralize those atolls and strike behind them, at one stroke isolating them and gaining an advanced position.

Surprise Course Taken

Having at their disposal the most massive aero-amphibious force ever assembled, they chose the latter course and the Japs, obviously expecting them to choose the former were caught off-guard.

While much heavy fighting remains conquest of the Marshalls is assured and is expected to have enormous effect on the rest of the Pacific war.

Kwajalein affords excellent airfield and harbor facilities from which the Pacific froce can pre-

Americans Smashing German Stand 500 Yards from Cassino

Wide Gaps Torn in Gustav Line as Nazis Fight Suicide Action To Block Rome Road.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Feb. 3—American troops had battled to within 500 yards of Cassino from the north today and allied headquarters announced that the core of the Germans' Gustav line was "seriously threatened."

The Americans and French tore wide gaps in the Gustav line in bloody mountain fighting to the rear of the stronghold despite a hail of fire from German six-barreled Nebelwerfer mortars and self-propelled guns manned by a "last ditch" garrison fighting from the ruins.

At the same time other Americans were making a direct frontal attack on the ancient city guarding the Liri valley.

To the north allied troops enlarged their Anzio bridgehead in the face of desperate German counterattacks, one of which was thrown back west of Littoria.

With their Cassino front near collapse the Germans were throwing attacks against the beachhead with increasing strength as new elements arrived in the enemy line in an effort to seal off the most serious threat to Rome.

Nazis Nervous

On the comparatively quiet Eighth army front along the Adriatic the allies had the enemy jumpy and nervous. The Nazis were shooting off flares frequently at night, and there was much movement of enemy transport behind the lines.

(German nervousness frequently is a sign of an impending allied offensive.)

The Germans were fighting grimly to halt Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army at Cassino.

But the Americans and French to the north widened the breach in the Gustav line to three miles, capturing several heights near Terelle. The Americans crossed the Cassino-Terelle road and Terelle itself was almost surrounded after capture of a series of heights on Mt. Castellone, a 2,300-foot peak where 160 prisoners were taken.

Cassino faced encirclement if the Germans continued to fight to the last man as they gave every indication of doing.

Despite the threat from every side the Germans contested every inch of ground and burrowed in the ruins like the Russian defenders of Stalingrad.

TWO-THIRDS OF E GOAL RAISED

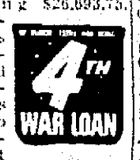
Fourth War Loan Leaders Say Heavy Daily Buying Needed To Reach Quota.

Fourth War Loan leaders were cheered today when Marion county's E bond sales took another substantial step toward the $819,000 goal, advancing to a new total of $541,943.75 or 66 per cent of the amount needed.

This resulted from E bond sales yesterday totaling $26,893.75. Workers today emphasized that this pace must be maintained or bettered during the remaining 10 selling days of the drive, due to end Feb. 15, if Marion county is to put its E bond sales over the top.



"Marion county is the first in the 26-county area to put its total sales over the top—let's not let the failure to sell enough E bonds be a blot on that record," Chairman R. E. White urged this morning. "We're over the top, yes, in everything but E bonds, but since the treasury department is more concerned about E bonds than anything else in this campaign, we can't say we've done a real job until that series is over the top, too."

New Total $3,086,518

Meanwhile, the county's total sales passed the three-million-dollar mark when sales totaling $185,286.25 were reported yesterday. This made a new total of $3,086,518.25 or more than 100 per cent of the county's total goal of $2,828,600.

E bond sales efforts continued today to center around the "Back Your Buddy With a Bond" drive at the Victory House in charge of the women's division and in the sale of tickets for the war bond show Monday night at the Palace theater.

At the Victory House, a bond buyer is given the privilege of having a blue star placed in front of the name of some person on the county honor roll. Also, the person in service thus honored is

Maj. Warren Sawyer Cited For Gallantry on Italian Front

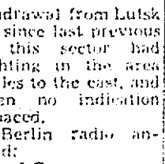
Major Warren Sawyer of Marion, now with the U. S. Army Medical Corps in Italy, has been commended for gallantry in action in the vicinity of Salerno, The Associated Press reported today, relaying a war department announcement from Washington, D. C.

The same announcement disclosed he had been promoted from the rank of captain to major following the same action.



Major Sawyer

The official commendation as announced today in Washington follows:

"He was a member of advance Headquarters (Blank) Fighter Wing. During the first days due to the narrowness of the bridgehead it was necessary to set up operations far in advance of our artillery and within range of all calibers of enemy artillery. During the almost constant shelling which caused much loss of personnel and equipment Captain Sawyer took care of the wounded and performed his duties without thought of self. His cheerful acceptance of danger and great devotion to duty were an inspiration and a comfort to those about him."

The citation disclosed that the action for which he was commended occurred between Sept. 12 and 21 of last year, at a time when United Nations invasion forces were fighting one of the bloodiest battles since the Mediterranean area was plunged into hostilities. The landing was met by terrific enemy fire, and it was participation in this action that resulted in the commendation made public today.

Major Sawyer's wife and his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer, received the scant news late last year in a letter from Major Sawyer that he had won a citation, but he did not give details. Later, a copy of the Stars and Stripes, service publication, reached them disclosing that he and 37 other men had been cited for gallantry at Salerno.

Major Sawyer left Marion for service in September of 1942. He was promoted to a captain the following January. His wife and their son, Johnny, and his parents make their homes at White Oaks Farm.

SCHICK TESTING TO BE STARTED MONDAY

Schedule of Visits to County Schools Announced.

Each year the county health department puts on an extensive program of immunization against those diseases which are preventible. Within the next two weeks the process of diphtheria immunization will be offered to the students in the rural schools of Marion county. This includes the Schick test for all and the toxoid for those who are susceptible.

Why Necessary

In 1941 the city of Marion had 12 cases of diphtheria and the county had 2 cases. In 1942 the city had 3 cases with one death and the county had 1 case; this case resulted in death. These cases could have been prevented by early immunization.

Each child over six months of age should be successfully immunized against this disease. Your doctor is anxious to assist in keeping your child well.

Permit cards have been distributed throughout the rural schools. They are to be signed by the parents if they wish for

FLYING FORTS AND FIGHTERS JOIN IN RAID

Other U. S. Bombers with RAF Escort Attack Northern France.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 3—In a great American assault on Nazi targets in Germany and occupied Europe, 1,100 Fortresses and fighters struck the U-boat center of Wilhelmshaven today and twin-engined Marauders with an RAF escort bombed military installations in northern France.

Although the weather was clear and crisp when the armada left British bases, the "Forts" ploughed through heavy overcast at the climax of their 700-mile round-trip and were forced to bomb through clouds.

The first crews back said they encountered few fighters and only moderate risk and that the weather became the biggest obstacle as they neared the Helgoland Bight.

Through breaks in the clouds the crews saw a heavy smoke-screen over the target area, but it was not believed to have affected accuracy of their bombing.

Crewmen gave enthusiastic versions of the bombing.

It was the sixth operation in seven days for the British-based American forces.

Last Hit Nov. 3

Wilhelmshaven was last hit by the Americans on Nov. 3 with 500 bombers, believed to have been a record force of four engined craft up to that time.

The target is one of Germany's major ports.

The shattering daylight assault followed RAF Mosquito attacks on targets in western Germany last night, thus keeping the greatest sustained allied offensive of the war rolling around the clock.

The announced force of 1,100 bombers and fighters making up today's heavy striking force fell short of the record force of 1,500 American bombers and fighters which made the 1,860-ton shattering raid on Frankfurt last Saturday.

First U. S. Target

Wilhelmshaven received the first American bombs dropped on Germany during the war when the city's port installations were hit more than a year ago, on Jan. 27, 1943, by a small force of Flying Fortresses.

British aircraft also laid mines in enemy waters during the night, said the announcement. No planes were lost in the forays, which followed daylight assaults by U. S. heavy bombers yesterday on the French invasion coast.

Hours after the American heavy bombers had left the smoke and flames of Wilhelmshaven behind them, other allied bombers and long-range fighters kept streaming across the channel in what appeared to be one of the heaviest offensives in weeks.

One watcher said one large group of the late returning channel raiders required three-quarters of an hour to pass the coastline.

U. S. NEWSMAN DIES IN PACIFIC

Navy Reveals Raymond Clapper, Political Writer, Lost in Crash.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Raymond Clapper, the well-known Washington columnist and political commentator, has lost his life in a plane accident while covering the invasion of the Marshalls in the central Pacific.

A brief Navy announcement here said:

"The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet has reported that a plane in which Mr. Raymond Clapper was a passenger, engaged in covering the Marshalls invasion, collided with another plane while forming up. Mr. Clapper was in the plane with the squadron commander. Both planes crashed in the lagoon. There were no survivors."

The exact time and place of the accident were not given.

Clapper, long associated with the Scripps-Howard newspaper syndicate, left here Dec. 28, going to Honolulu and Australia and subsequently joining the Pacific fleet.

He was 51 years old, a native of Linn county, Kansas and attended the University of Kansas before going into newspaper work. His wife and two children live here.

He began his distinguished career as a reporter on the Kansas City Star in 1916, later joined the United Press in Chicago, and was associated with that organization in Milwaukee, St. Paul, New York and Washington, becoming chief political writer for United Press and manager of its Washington bureau.

Clapper subsequently became a special writer for the Washington Post and went to the Scripps-Howard Newspapers in January, 1936, as columnist and political commentator.

He was a former honorary president of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, and one time head of the capital's Gridiron club. He was the author of the book "Racketeering in Washington."

As recently as last Friday Clapper said in his column appearing in Scripps-Howard newspapers through the United Features Syndicate, he felt his Pacific assignment was a success because he had been able to obtain a jungle knife for his young son, William Raymond.

In addition to his widow and son and daughter, William Raymond, 17, and Janet, 20, Clapper is survived by his mother, Mrs. Julia Clapper, formerly of Kansas City, now of Washington.

Announcing Clapper's death to the house Rep. Bender (R-Ohio) described the veteran reporter as "one of the outstanding newspapermen of America and one of the fairest columnists."

At his press conference, Speaker Rayburn said:

"He was a very able newspaperman and a very patriotic American citizen. His death was a great loss."

Clapper Here During Harding Campaign

Raymond Clapper was known personally to a number of Marion residents, having been here throughout the Harding front porch campaign in 1920 as a representative of The United Press. While in Marion he stayed at the home of the late James H. Eymon, Marion attorney, and Mrs. Eymon on Mt. Vernon avenue near the Harding home.

R. E. Parish, Injured Flier, Returns Home

Richard E. Parish, Marion airman who was injured in a plane crash at Burlington, Vt., in March last year, arrived here yesterday from New York City, where he has been receiving treatment at the hospital for Special Surgery, for the last two months. With Mrs. Parish, who was with him at Burlington at the time of his accident and also throughout his confinement in hospitals in the east, he is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parish of 366 North Prospect street. His condition continues to improve and he is now able to walk and be up for a part of the time, the family states. Prior to going to New York he was in the hospital at Burlington.

TOKYO FEARS ATTACK

LONDON, Feb. 3 — A DNB broadcast from Germany today quoted the mayor of Tokyo as declaring officials of the city "anticipate and are prepared for air attacks. "Along with obvious air raid protection measures there also is a systematic disposal of the population of this city of 8,000,000."

FURLOUGHS AHEAD FOR LONG SERVICE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—American veterans of long service in World War II may soon be coming home on furloughs under a "troop rotation" plan to be inaugurated by the war department.

Lieut. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding general of Army forces in the south Pacific, disclosed yesterday such a program will begin with men who have been in the area two years or longer. But he warned it would be tempered by combat requirements and transportation facilities, and that it could not be construed as promising a furlough for all men of two years' service in the south Pacific.

"A program of returns has been initiated ... ," he said, "on a scale considered commensurate with the means available. As those means increase, the program will be expanded."

Harmon, in Washington for staff conferences, also disclosed at a news conference that approximately 60 per cent of the pilots and crews shot down over enemy ... (illegible) in the south Pacific have been rescued.

Dance in Bond Show Monday

Dancing, fancy and otherwise, will hold a good spot on the program of the Air Service Command Varieties, to be staged at the Palace theater Monday night as a war bond benefit, and the six men pictured above will be among the cast's top-flight hoofers. Billed as the "Sextetanus," the group is made up of men who were professional entertainers in civilian life and all are from the cast of "This Is the Army." In the group are Sgt. Chick Gagnon, in the show business for 14 years who has danced in Earl Carroll's Vanities; Pvt. Charles Reade, formerly at the Cocoanut Grove in Boston as a dancer; Pfc. Cliff Ferree, an actor, singer and dancer; Pfc. Howard Montgomery, former master of ceremonies at the Arabian Supper club in Columbus, Pfc. Stan Sirois, a former night club and theater dancer, and Pvt. Lou Spector, the smallest man in the group. A ticket to the Palace show is free with each $50 war bond purchase through any one of the banks, loan associations or individuals handling the ticket sales.

CHARGES FARMERS IN DARK ON CROPS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Farmers have been left in "a state of confusion and uncertainty" about their 1944 crop plans, Senator Wherry, Republican of Nebraska, said today, because food subsidy legislation has been shelved while congress wrangles over the soldier vote bill.

Wherry joined Senator Ball, Republican of Minnesota, and Butler, Republican of Connecticut, in charging Democratic senate leaders with deliberately taking up the vote bill first in order to limit debate on the subsidy question. The latter must be decided by Feb. 17 since life of the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC)—chief subsidy-paying agency—expires then.

"Farmers don't know where they stand," said Wherry. "Until the CCC is extended, they can't be certain that the government is going to keep on paying floor prices on certain crops, or whether subsidies are going to continued to hold retail prices down on others."

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat of Wyoming, countered Wherry's charge by pointing out that the CCC act was approved in 1944 program of support prices for various crops subject to congressional action covering the years

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

Very Easy to Make. No Cooking. Saves Big Money.

No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, can't be surpassed, for real results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really amazing cough relief—about four times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it—and it never spoils.

You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and let's you sleep. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

Harmon To Spend Rest of Leave in Ann Arbor

By The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 3—Lt. Tom Harmon, here with movie actress Elyse Knox for a visit with his parents, says he plans to spend the rest of his 30-day leave at home.

The former Michigan football star and Miss Knox came here from Gary, Ind., where Harmon met Miss Knox on her arrival from Hollywood.

Asked if he planned to marry the actress on his leave, Harmon said he had been seeing the same girl so long it would seem odd not to marry her.

Miss Knox also was a member of the party.

Harmon at present is stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.

NEW FOREIGN POLICY IS SEEN IN RUSSIA

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Feb. 3—Foreign diplomats examining the Soviet Union's reconstruction of the relationships of its 16 republics with the outside world today saw in the move possibilities for one of the broadest, most elastic foreign policies of any government in the world—one which could give Russia the opportunity to swing great weight in allied councils.

Increasing interest was shown in the trends the new program might take, especially whether the Soviet Union will seek to set up separate representations in the various countries with which it now has diplomatic relationships.

Autonomy of the republics in foreign affairs would give the Soviets the legal right to ask for multiple representation in such councils as the League of Nations like that enjoyed by the British Commonwealth of Nations.

There are diplomatic authorities here who feel the Russians have pulled off a brilliant piece of work in international diplomacy, no matter what are the immediate developments.

The history-making plan adopted unanimously by the supreme Soviet (Russian parliament) last night gave the 16 republics the power to deal directly with other countries and raise their own army units.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov submitted the proposition, explaining to the delegates "this new step forward in the nationality question," concerning the various nationalities in the union resulted "through the success of the Soviet Union as a whole in the war against the invader."

Denied membership in the League of Nations for a long period, refused diplomatic recognition by many nations, young Soviet Russia now is coming up fast diplomatically.

Atrocities in World War II

[illegible] atrocities committed [illegible] Japanese [illegible] Americans [illegible] Germans [illegible] Japanese [illegible] Asia. [illegible] recognize some of the restraints on [illegible] their own allies, the Germans, [illegible] contact with the [illegible]. It is a well documented fact that Japanese fighting men have been schooled to [illegible] they can expect no hope of humanitarian treatment if captured and, therefore, must show no consideration to their captives.

Atrocities in World war II have been limited to fewer there has been a minimum of the propaganda atrocities of the war 25 years ago. The Japanese have provided a more potent stimulus than mere propaganda ever could provide to American incentive in the prosecution of the war against them and their methods. There can be no peace short of unconditional surrender with a nation capable of the things that were done to United States prisoners of war.

Hitlerism No Answer

ADOLF HITLER'S return in the twilight of his violent career to the anti-Russian policy which he laid down in "Mein Kampf" needs cool appraisal in the United States. This country is not without elements of the same unreasoning fear and hatred which hastened Germany's doom under a counter-revolutionary regime fired by distrust of everything Russian.

There are Americans on the verge of adopting the Hitler thought pattern of irreconcilability. But they fortunately are offset by a larger group of Americans believing that the United States can make its own destiny by its own efforts, living in an international society which no single country can make exclusive. These Americans respect Russia for its accomplishments in war. They respect its prospects in the years after the war. They find many points of difference with the Russian government and feel free to state them honestly, but they find nothing to persuade them that their own country cannot continue its growth in accordance with its native principles, regardless of what may happen in the Soviet Union.

These Americans have seen that Hitlerism is no answer to the problems which Russia has helped to raise—problems which the Russians, themselves, have not yet solved. They reject it as they reject all other political and economic forms which do not conform with their own principles. Among these are Communism and its adapted version which perhaps should be called Stalinism. They have nothing to offer Americans, who still have, lacking only the ability of some of them to understand it, the most workable, most satisfactory formula for getting things done yet developed among the nations. Unlike the Germans who believed with Hitler that either Russia or Germany had to be destroyed, Americans believe the United States can stand any and all competition as long as it stands on its own principles.

Don't Look Now

DESPITE the Roosevelt administration's insistence on more than 10 billion in new taxes and the congressional rebuttal that a fifth of that is more than enough, it still is a surprise to realize that taxes have been increased substantially in the bill now scheduled for final passage.

This is a phenomenon in public psychology growing out of the public's present preoccupation with income taxes. In the people's present state of mind, it is simply incredible that a new tax bill is being put on the books which not only fails to simplify income taxes but adds to their burden in the brackets where most taxpayers now struggle to make ends meet.

Perhaps taxation has no place in it for the gentle touches of public relations. Of all times in history this would have been the psychologically perfect moment for congress to declare that in recognition of the trouble citizens are having with their complicated income tax forms it had decided to remove some of the complications before piling on more freight.

As it is, the wisest policy probably is to ignore the new taxes till the old scores are settled. One thing at a time is enough to handle. We must remember our obligation not to overdo in wartime and become a civilian casualty.

A jeep was bracketed by a lot of shell and mortar fire. The men jumped out and ran into a stone house. When they went through the door, a booby trap went off. The house skyrocketed in a burst of arms, legs, heads, parts of the jeep and masonry. When the smoke cleared away all I could see was a black hole in the ground.—Corp. Charles W. King in Italy.

News Behind the News

[illegible] Delinquency Symp- [illegible] National Organization.

By PAUL MALLON

[illegible] the character of its women [illegible] matter how [illegible] conventions and parties it [illegible] been.

[illegible] less an experienced expert than Inspector Walter M. Germain, crime prevention police at Saginaw, Mich., has recognized juvenile delinquency as a character defect.

Build Character of Prisons

For some years, he has been speaking and writing of his experience, saying the only alternatives are the building of character or more prisons. He even joins a physician writer in prophesying "a psychopathic breakdown of civilization" unless the current inaren of crime by adolescents is reversed.

His theories of what should be done only partly coincide with mine, yet police are furnishing excellent leadership in some localities like Saginaw. In Morristown, N. J., for instance Detective Lieutenant Valerin went to the mayor with the old familiar story that there was not much police could do about juvenile delinquents until crime was committed except to notify parents of damage, due, etc. The mayor suggested a plan of police action leadership.

Lieutenant Valerin called in 20 boys and their parents. They founded an organization known as the Junior Legion of Honor. The kids like it. A playground has been set aside for them, and character leadership has been established under older boys.

Plan Called Success

As a result of this alone, the local paper says Morristown now has no juvenile delinquency problems which face other communities. Here discipline was obtained by wise leadership and example.

How the foolish theorists can continue to advocate the freedom of expression in the face of such obvious evidence of the critical necessity for the establishment of national youth character, is more than I can understand. Adults must practice repressions and restraints against animal inclinations and appetites in their own lives, although some do it little better than the juveniles.

Until the child mind itself can develop to the point of similar practice, obviously he must have leadership by example and discipline—through a renewal of the waning responsibilities of home, school and church, to which may now be added, police.

The two editors can quit if they want to. My desk will continue to be a clearing house for such information to serve as a guidance for new understanding of and action on the problem.

SIGRID SCHULTZ

SIGRID SCHULTZ'S "Germany Will Try It Again" is another valuable contribution to the world's case against Germany. Its title is worth notice—Miss Schultz does not say "The Nazis Will Try It Again." As did Konrad Heiden in his "Der Fuehrer," Miss Schultz traces our present situation directly to the Pan-German movement, which means that it began well back in the nineteenth century, if not, indeed, in the time of Caesar.

At the first sign of weakness, she believes the Germans will begin once more to plot Der Tag. We may win this war, we may even win a third world war. But unless we keep our heads and our strength we shall never be free of the German menace. Her proof begins while the first World War was still in progress, at a time when Miss Schultz herself was in Germany as an enemy alien, having been taken there just before the war began by her father.

Months before November 11, 1918, she writes, Ludendorff and others were busily preparing the basis for the current war. What amounted to a secret general staff was formed, means of camouflaging caches of arms, of bootlegging an army, were prepared. By the middle twenties Germany was operating full blast on the new system, one example of which is the effrontery with which the money stolen from the Allies' rightful reparations demand was put into modern factories which in turn were so designed that they could be converted overnight into war plants.

She also shows how wonderfully the Germans have used familiar trends, and now they can use them again. The cry for a "leader" is one; the delusion that Nazism protects private enterprise is another. The fright technique (the specter of Bolshevism) has been useful and so has the use of well-meaning people and fifth columnists to stir racial friction. The legend of German efficiency and "kultur" has been most valuable, and on the other hand, we are told that we must be kind to the Germans, or they will revolt. Planted rumors to instill distrust of our Allies are old stuff, but Miss Schultz shows how they work.

4,601,580 Checks

Early in January, the office of dependency benefits, handling family allowance and pay allotments on behalf of more than 10 million dependents of army men and women, mailed 4,601,580 checks in a single day. Thousands of allotments are lumped in single checks covering amounts payable to insurance companies and banks, which accounts for the fact fewer checks are mailed than the total number of active accounts, which recently reached the five million mark.

Approximately three million of the total are family allowances, paid directly to wives, children and other dependent relatives of enlisted personnel. Nearly half the money disbursed in family allowance payments is deducted from the soldiers' pay; the rest is contributed by the government. The two million Class E allotments of pay are assignments on pay from the army men and women's pay; of these more than a million are sent directly to dependents, with the remainder [illegible] to the credit of dependents.

The office of dependency benefits is situated in Newark, N. J.

Soviets Criticized for Describing Pope and Vatican as Pro-Fascist.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE publication by Izvestia, which is the official newspaper of the Soviet government, of an article calling the Pope and the Vatican "pro-Fascist," is a highly improper action.

By the terms of the declaration on Italy, adopted at Moscow Fascists are recognized as enemies of the United Nations. Therefore, the name "Fascist" is no longer a word that can be used loosely by journalists. It is a word which has to be used carefully, especially by governments, because we are now pledged to treat Fascists in Italy as enemies.

Now, at this moment, British, French and American armies are fighting to take Rome. When they enter the city, the Vatican and the Pope will be within our lines. This is a very great responsibility. If we are to discharge it well, there must be no shadow of misunderstanding as to the policy of the United Nations for which the British and the American governments are here the trustees.

The Vatican, as a temporal power, is a neutral state with which the United States and Britain have friendly relations. We intend, of course, to maintain them, and to protect scrupulously and cordially all the established rights of the church wherever our military authority extends, and neither to practice ourselves nor to countenance from others, while we have the responsibility in Italy, any interference in the affairs of the church.

In so far as the Izvestia article means or implies any intent to cause a deviation from this policy, either by the Soviet government or by inciting popular agitation in Italy, we must reject it firmly unequivocally and entirely.

Reform Plan

Passing on to other matters, there is the constitutional reform, explained by Foreign Commissar Molotov, under which the 16 republics of the Soviet Union are to have their own national army formations and separate diplomatic representation abroad. This is a development which is likely to have far-reaching, and it may well be in the main beneficial, consequences upon the relations between Russia and the other great powers of the world.

It is a measure of decentralization in what will be the largest and most powerful state in the world. The decentralization of great states is one of the surest, probably the surest, guaranty they can give against military aggression.

It is very difficult indeed for a genuinely decentralized state, which must consult with its constituent members, to plan and execute a great campaign of conquest. Japan is a highly centralized empire, and Germany, which was in its more peaceable days the Germanies, has reached the peak of centralization under Hitler. Therefore, as a matter of principle, the decentralizing reform in the Soviet Union is auspicious.

We may note that the reforms promise the formation of national armies for the various nationalities within the Soviet Union. Of all measures of decentralization the formation of national armies is the most convincing. When in a vast empire the army itself is not imperial, regardless of the nationality of the recruits, then the spirit of independence is bound to grow and the power to assert it.

Molotov's speech shows that he had to reassure some Russians that such a deep change in the unity of the Russian forces would not be allowed to impair their fighting efficiency in this war.

Proof of Sincerity

This is an indication of the reality of the reform. And if history teaches us anything about these things, it is that when distinct nations within a great state are promised their own armies, they will, when the external enemy no longer threatens them, become insistent that the promise be carried out. And as they achieve this most practical of all the rights of sovereignty, they will use the power it gives them to become more and more autonomous in all their affairs.

Power Politics at Stake

This Russian development needs to be considered in connection with the problem raised by Gen. Smuts of South Africa in his speech last November, and more recently by Lord Halifax. It is the problem of whether and how the United Kingdom can "claim equal partnership" in the company of "titans" like Russia and the United States.

The problem is posed by the fact that, though the British empire is the largest political organization in the world, it is so genuinely and thoroughly decentralized in its most important parts, which will include India, that it cannot and does not act as a single power in the world.

The United Kingdom, with less than 50,000,000 and a low birthrate, carries the principal responsibility for Europe in dealing with Russia, which, in spite of its huge losses in this war, may look forward to a population, living on rich resources, which will surpass 200,000,000.

Vast Power

Quite evidently, this vast Russian power wielded as a unit by a highly centralized government in Moscow would be a formidable partner in the councils of Europe and of the world. This same power, if it became decentralized into a federation of national republics, especially on its European and Asiatic frontiers, would be a more complex and therefore a more cumbersome, and, therefore, a more comfortable political system to deal with.

The objection that Russia will ask for "16 votes" at the peace conference is an amateurish objection. For it supposes the impossible, that there will be a peace conference at which decisions will be taken by counting votes. Obviously the only way the decisions can be taken is under the leadership of the great powers and by their consent, and in consultation and so far as possible, in agreement with the other powers which are concerned with the decision. Voting cannot and will not be the method of deciding the great issues, and the very idea of voting in things of this sort should be put out of our minds.

The centralized state is a monster even at its most benevolent stage and, just because it is indispensable in war, peace will bring a reaction against it.

If that reaction goes too far, it will produce anarchy. But it must go a very considerable distance or there will be popular explosions. It is not unlikely, then, that Stalin, who knows his Russia, has been reading correctly the signs of the times.

Veterans After This War Must S[illegible] America's Favorite Game of D[illegible] ing Them the Brushoff.

By DAMON RUNYON

WHEN [illegible] formed in some [illegible] during [illegible] and, before [illegible] certain important preferences given [illegible] orans were [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible].

These privileges were obtained [illegible] legislative measures by the [illegible] organized [illegible] are already [illegible]. That is to [illegible] to be developed [illegible] strength in their [illegible] ship for any purpose.

This idea is entirely [illegible] politicians. They have long feared [illegible] ility that the veterans might [illegible] day [illegible] as a political group. It is a fact, [illegible] to the G. A. R. that dominated the [illegible] the north after the Civil war.

Not going political, the veterans' organizations of today have no weight with the [illegible]. They can only use moral [illegible] aim [illegible] ends. Hence, the politicians [illegible] attempt to temper with veterans benefits [illegible] convenience, and in norms that is always popular with the civilian [illegible].

NOW take the case of labor. Through [illegible] legislations, labor also acquired benefits. Labor makes no bones about the power [illegible] vote. It does not hesitate to flaunt it [illegible] with menacing import before the eyes [illegible] politicians, and as a result there has been [illegible] monkeying with labor's gains.

Perhaps our veterans of World war I [illegible] a mistake in organizing on a non-political [illegible] but I have no doubt it was in a spirit [illegible] mism that could not possibly contemplate [illegible] unkindness toward men who had offered [illegible] lives to their country.

They probably felt that any lack of [illegible] on the part of the nation with respect [illegible] veterans of other wars was an oversight [illegible] could not be repeated in a more enlightened [illegible] day. So they organized on an altruistic [illegible] placing their case in the hands of the statesmen in Washington with a confidence that [illegible] truly touching.

And they got a kicking around they always remember. Their handicap was [illegible] could not say to the statesmen, 'You will [illegible] from our organization at the polls.' They [illegible] not say this when benefits that were [illegible] grudgingly given them were set aside later. But labor could and did say it.

THE number of war veterans up to this [illegible] has been comparatively small. Fresh generations of civilians who had no sympathy with them came to voting age and to the sentiment of war veterans that is characteristic of all civilians. Thus, even as a political organization veterans might not have been powerful group.

But when this war is over, there will be between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 veterans. Millions of their family connections and [illegible] the oncoming generation of voters will have been educated to an understanding of veterans' cause. This vast group, [illegible] patriotic young leaders, could dominate [illegible] political situation in the United States [illegible] make it certain the men who bore arms against the enemy in this war get a square deal.

This group which might even become a new political party after the war, could [illegible] itself with older organizations of veterans without making the serious error the [illegible] did of foreswearing the only method by which they can strike terror to the hearts of politicians and end the great old American pastime of making the veteran a political football.

Wartime Manners

By Truman Twill

It's a cinch no one else is going to put a good word for the slap-happy saps who put the people's needs for everything imaginable with no help and darned little appreciation from the people, so here goes.

If we worked in a grocery store and some dame tied us up for half an hour figuring her rationing arithmetic for her and explaining for the umpteenth time that her pet opinions about OPA and the government in general haven't a darned thing to do with the regulations that overworked clerks and checkers are supposed to obey, she'd get a can of string beets right in the eye.

If we operated a filling station and [illegible] unessential drivers for miles around with a sleet storm to come barging in yelling immediate, personal attention to their inflated tires, rundown batteries, leaking motors and sloppy windshields, we'd [illegible] handful of ignition and show them some works.

If we worked in a department store and [illegible] to patrol the equivalent of a small Texas and some twitter-brain went through a [illegible] tory like a burglar ransacking the premises would reach under the counter and get a bat with which we could give the gal[illegible] a pound fracture of the wrist and then [illegible] No-Sale with a bop on the top of her [illegible].

If we worked in a restaurant and a customer gave us one of those books of "I am a slave to my stomach, see, and you to become the same, see, and no [illegible] and no excuses but just give me [illegible] want, including a pound of butter for [illegible] or I will start flinging my weight [illegible] joint!" we would invite that customer right ahead and would have an ice pick to give him something to think about the first twitch.

If we worked in a repair shop and a sniffing galoot demanded that we [illegible] bicycle, call Donald Nelson and steal his own grandmother to fix up the [illegible] chances are went on the fritz because too dumb to take care of it, or tried to fix it with a crowbar before yelling for help would bend it over his noggin and put the door with a foot planted [illegible] rear bumper.

Wherever it happened to be, if we were honestly we were doing our best under worst possible conditions, we would [illegible] sass from any member of the public who [illegible] to meet us half way, or who snivele[illegible] because he was fond of foot-kissing as a business enterprise had the time to do it. [illegible] kissing should be continued ad nauseam [illegible] duration of the war. Maybe we'd [illegible] business, but we'd be we'd get [illegible] satisfaction out of a one-man counter [illegible] against the public's own bad [illegible] wartime.

PACIFIC

the second day of invasion and on the same day that forces went ashore at that point. The deep anchorage of boomerang-shaped Kwajalein islet on the southern end of Kwajalein atoll is seriously menaced, with one third of the islet already in American hands.

The airfield and the anchorage are the keys to Kwajalein, world's largest atoll, promising the Americans investment of all its more than 30 islets surrounding a 655-square-mile lagoon.

Capture of Roi airfield and the invasion of Kwajalein islet were announced yesterday by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Admiral Nimitz' Wednesday communique made clear the choice of Kwajalein for the invasion scene had fooled the Japanese. Parallel lines of eastern and western atolls make up the Marshalls, with Kwajalein near the center of the western group. Apparently, the Japanese had looked for an attack on the eastern group or at the southern extremities of either chain.

American Marines landed Tuesday on Namur, adjacent to Roi on the northern end of Kwajalein atoll.

While Marines and Army veterans of the Aleutian campaign expanded their holdings on Kwajalein, invaded Monday, other fortified atolls in the mid-Pacific Marshalls were kept under heavy attack.

The most powerful fleet ever assembled and hundreds of planes added their shells and bombs to the more than 14,000 tons of explosives which have been poured on the Marshalls since Sunday.

Official reports, telling of moderate casualties and no losses among naval units, offered no grounds for belief the Japanese Navy has put in an appearance or that the Nipponese airforce has offered any serious challenge.

Marshalls Battle Progressing Favorably

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Reports thus far from the Marshall islands operations show the central Pacific battle is "progressing favorably," Undersecretary of War Patterson said today.

He told a news conference the 4th Marine division and the 7th Army division have encountered heavy resistance but casualties so far have been "moderate."

The landings on Kwajalein and Roi were preceded by "heavy and accurate" naval and aerial gunfire which silenced shore batteries, provided cover for the invading forces, destroyed or neutralized enemy airfields and swept the skies clear of enemy aircraft, Patterson said.

Capture of the Marshalls, Patterson pointed out, will "widen the cracks in the outer defense ring" of the Japanese empire and these cracks may clear the way for advances on the Philippines or Tokyo itself.

Patterson noted that although the bulk of our naval force is now in the area west of Hawaii, the Japanese fleet has not put in appearance and is showing evidences of "timidity." He said as the advance westward continues the security of the western hemisphere will be increased. The island defense barrier for this hemisphere now has been moved 2,000 miles farther west, he said.

Tully Township's Honor Roll of 69 Names Dedicated

Dedication of an honor roll in tribute to residents of Tully township serving with the armed forces was held last night when a communitywide program was presented at the Martel school. Today the honor roll bearing 69 names was to be erected on the schoolhouse grounds. Through an oversight the name of Floyd Jackson was omitted when the names were placed on the roll. This will be inscribed on the honor roll as soon as possible, the committee stated today.

The board has a blue background with the names inscribed in black letters and has a decorative finish of lattice work. As others from the community, or whose parents reside in the community, leave for service their names will be added. The committee, made up of the township trustees, asks that they be notified and of omissions and also when men or women leave for service.

Approximately 150 persons attended the exercises last night, at which Fred Baldinger, chairman of the township trustees and of honor roll arrangements, presided. As the stage curtains were drawn to reveal the honor roll at either side of which stood a school girl dressed in white, Miss Eleanor Jean Grant, music instructor in the county schools and Miss Rosemary Warrick sang "When the Lights Go On All Over the World."

The dedication speech was given by Rev. Charles H. Edgar, pastor of the Methodist church at Iberia, and the address for the evening was by Otto Mills of Caledonia. Music was furnished by pupils of the Martel school.

The honor roll was provided through the general township fund and will be in charge of the township trustees, Mr. Baldinger, Ellis Kennedy and Elmer Gunther.

Rally Launches Sale at Old Fort Mills

Old Fort Mills, Marion soybean processing plant, launched its Fourth War Loan efforts at a rally of workers yesterday, and this morning one of its departments had already gone over the top by a substantial margin.

Employes were assembled yesterday afternoon at a new concrete block building constructed by the company to house its maintenance and repair shop, and which also houses a recreation room where men may eat their lunches. The building is equipped with showers, lockers and also houses the office of the purchasing department.

Harold J. Grigsby, chairman of the payroll deduction division of the Marion County War Finance committee, and Lewis Tatelet, plant manager, both spoke briefly, urging the workers to go the limit in war bond purchases to back up the nation's fighting men.

Elmer W. Loy is chairman of the Fourth War Loan drive at the plant, with Mac Furber acting as his assistant. The company's goal is $2,500 for individual buyers.

The feed department, first to go over the top, had 112 per cent of its quota this morning, and the office group was well on the way to its quota with 43 per cent raised to date.

World Still Seeks Answer To Red Diplomatic Move

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Soviet Union's startling extension of the sovereignty of its 16 component republics to include military and diplomatic affairs has left the outside world in the position of the scientist who has witnessed a phenomenon which he recognizes as having momentous potentialities but which he isn't able to explain with finality.

Moscow's gesture patently has as many possibilities as a hedgehog has quills. In yesterday's column I mentioned briefly what looks like the most far-reaching of these, and I invite your attention to it again because of the effect which it may have on the world's changing political situation. This is that the Soviet reorganization may result in additional countries joining this Red commonwealth of nations.

No Bar To Expansion

The reconstruction tends, it seems to me, to create a commonwealth of such flexibility that other nations may become members irrespective of whether they are geographically contiguous to Russia. I cited merely as examples, the cases of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, all of which have developed Communist parties. Should they adopt the Soviet form of government, there would seem to be no reason why they shouldn't become members of the Soviet Union with the same degree of sovereignty as the present members have.

This also might be true of other countries whose political complexions have become doubtful since the war. We mustn't forget that the pre-war governments of many European countries are in the melting-pot. Even great nations like Germany, France and Italy are on the uncertain list.

In short, the end of the European conflict might find the Soviet Union with considerably more than its present sixteen members. The late fanatical Leon Trotzky, fiery exponent of Red world revolution, could hardly have envisaged such possibilities as exist now. It was Stalin who shelved Trotzky's wild - eyed dream and turned to development of Russia's resources and army—a program which has resulted in the Soviet's present strength.

Problem for Post-War Period

Even if there are no acquisitions to the union, the present membership could create a tremendous problem in the construction of any post-war "League of Nations." The point is, of course, that since each of the component states of the union is privileged to have separate relations with the outside world, Moscow would in effect—should it insist on the point—have sixteen votes in a League of Nations. All other countries would have one, excepting that the British Commonwealth has six, counting its dominions and India.

Now that's one of the rocks on which President Wilson's hopes of American membership in the League of Nations crashed. The United States senate in refusing to join the league based its action in part on the fact that the British would have six votes to our one. This might result in the United States being voted into a position which it didn't like.

Whatever may happen in the matter of multiple voting power, the autonomy of the sixteen Soviet republics will give the union great bargaining strength. That certainly is an amazing change in the position of a government which was barred from the League of Nations for a long time, and which was refused diplomatic recognition by many countries, including our own and Britain.

The Soviet reorganization also would seem likely to ease the way for reincorporation of the Baltic states into the union. As sovereign nations they have a right to join the Russian commonwealth.

Tito's Slav Troops Smash Six German Columns

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 3 — Yugoslav troops have smashed six German columns attempting to break through partisan defenses into liberated territory in Slovenia, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Tito said these recent successes against the Germans had been aided materially by a substantial increase in supplies sent him by the allies during the past month and by allied sea and air assaults against German positions in Yugoslavia.

German attacks so far have been scattered, Tito's communique declared, but it added grim fighting continued on the Slovenian battlefront and along the Croat and Dalmatian coastal areas, where the Nazis were trying to prevent landing of allied supplies.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. [illegible]

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

This second [illegible] ...each of the 16 republics would send envoys to the nations with which Russia has diplomatic relations and that the way would be opened for each foreign country to send an envoy to each of the 16 republics.

Each republic will have its own commissariat of foreign affairs as well as its national army formations. Red Star made clear in its sweeping explanation of the law passed by the supreme Soviet.

The paper added that single representation by an "all-union" representative abroad no longer could fully answer the growing needs of the 16 republics and that all-union pacts and agreements with other nations also no longer sufficed.

Red Fleet, official navy newspaper, took the same line.

"The formation of a strong anti-Hitlerite coalition headed by the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States, the success of the Moscow and Teheran conferences characterize the expansion of the international connections of our state," said Red Fleet.

"In these relations a single all-union representation board cannot fully guarantee the growing manifold and specific economic and cultural needs of the republics."

Izvestia, official government organ, adopted the same tone, and every leading editorial in today's Soviet press stressed the theory that a single Soviet ambassador in each country no longer can adequately handle the affairs of the Soviet Union's 16 republics.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman had nothing to say on the subject, indicating any comment must come from Washington.

Declares Lepke Planned To Murder Official

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3. Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and five Murder, Inc., associates plotted to kill a public official who was investigating them, Governor Thomas E. Dewey was told yesterday at a clemency hearing for Lepke and two aides.

Burton B. Turkus, assistant district attorney of Kings county, opposing pleas of counsel for Lepke, Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone that their lives be spared, said:

"The life of that public official was spared only because the gangsters feared that the murder would bring down on the heads of organized crime the wrath of the whole nation."

Turkus did not name the public official involved.

Dewey, while special prosecutor in Manhattan and later New York county district attorney, probed the racketeering activities of Lepke and his associates.

The three are under sentence to die Feb. 10 for the murder of Samuel Rosen, Brooklyn candy store owner, in 1939, for which they were convicted in 1941.

OFFICER CANDIDATE PROGRAM CURTAILED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — The army's officer candidate schools, with a total of 213,000 graduates, have been reduced to a monthly graduation rate of 2,500 to 3,000 with a further cut in prospect. Lieut. Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson announced today. The reduction was dictated from an original goal of 90 officers completed and raised a peak of 24,000 graduates in December 1942.

By June, July 1942 a [illegible] 1943 about 15,000 of the graduates were enlisted men sent home from combat units for training. Few officer candidate schools established overseas have graduated as many as 2,500 men, however, the one at Australia is the only overseas OCS at present operating.

In addition to OCS graduates, theater commanders overseas have been commissioning directly about 10,000 enlisted men, warrant officers and flight officers and a number of civilians and the Army in the United States has commissioned directly about 9,000 enlisted men and 3,000 warrant officers and flight officers.

Of the 26 officer candidate schools now operating, in five cases [illegible] ...ty seven have been discontinued and four are no longer accepting candidates.

Atrocities in World War II

THE horror caused by disclosures of brutality practiced on Americans by their Japanese captors after Bataan and Corregidor will do more than anything else could do at this time to bring the Pacific war into focus.

This is not a war between ancient enemies, as are most wars in Europe. It is not a war between conflicting elements of the same civilization. It is not a war waged by men who, in peacetime, abide by the same ethics, or who can be depended on even in wartime to show devotion to common standards of behavior.

This is a clash between Christian civilization and a nation dominated by pagans dedicated to conquest by violence. The Japanese not only hate Americans as wartime enemies; they despise them as inferiors and trespassers in Asia. They recognize none of the restraints or decencies which even their allies, the Germans, are capable of observing in contacts with the enemy. It is a well documented fact that Japanese fighting men have been schooled to believe they can expect no hope of humanitarian treatment if captured and, therefore, should show no consideration to their captives.

Atrocities in World war II have been limited to facts; there has been a minimum of the propaganda atrocities of the war 25 years ago. The Japanese have provided a more potent stimulus than mere propaganda ever could provide to American incentive in the prosecution of the war against them and their methods. There can be no peace short of unconditional surrender with a nation capable of the things that were done to United States prisoners of war.

Hitlerism No Answer

ADOLF HITLER'S return in the twilight of his violent career to the anti-Russian policy which he laid down in "Mein Kampf" needs cool appraisal in the United States. This country is not without elements of the same unreasoning fear and hatred which hastened Germany's doom under a counter-revolutionary regime fired by distrust of everything Russian.

There are Americans on the verge of adopting the Hitler thought pattern of irreconcilability. But they fortunately are offset by a larger group of Americans believing that the United States can make its own destiny by its own efforts, living in an international society which no single country can make exclusive. These Americans respect Russia for its accomplishments in war. They respect its prospects in the years after the war. They find many points of difference with the Russian government and feel free to state them honestly, but they find nothing to persuade them that their own country cannot continue its growth in accordance with its native principles, regardless of what may happen in the Soviet Union.

These Americans have seen that Hitlerism is no answer to the problems which Russia has helped to raise—problems which the Russians, themselves, have not yet solved. They reject it as they reject all other political and economic forms which do not conform with their own principles. Among these are Communism and its adapted version which perhaps should be called Stalinism. They have nothing to offer Americans, who still have, lacking only the ability of some of them to understand it, the most workable, most satisfactory formula for getting things done yet developed among the nations. Unlike the Germans who believed with Hitler that either Russia or Germany had to be destroyed, Americans believe the United States can stand any and all competition as long as it stands on its own principles.

Don't Look Now

DESPITE the Roosevelt administration's insistence on more than 10 billion in new taxes and the congressional rebuttal that a fifth of that is more than enough, it still is a surprise to realize that taxes have been increased substantially in the bill now scheduled for final passage.

This is a phenomenon in public psychology growing out of the public's present preoccupation with income taxes. In the people's present state of mind, it is simply incredible that a new tax bill is being put on the books which not only fails to simplify income taxes but adds to their burden in the brackets where most taxpayers now struggle to make ends meet.

Perhaps taxation has no place in it for the gentle touches of public relations. Of all times in history this would have been the psychologically perfect moment for congress to declare that in recognition of the trouble citizens are having with their complicated income tax forms it had decided to remove some of the complications before piling on more freight.

As it is, the wisest policy probably is to ignore the new taxes till the old scores are settled. One thing at a time is enough to handle. We must remember our obligation not to overdo in wartime and become a civilian casualty.

News Behind the News

Mallon Declares Juvenile Delinquency Symptom of National Degeneration.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Two new cases publishing my column have complicated enough entertaining to [illegible] because I have paid too much attention to juvenile delinquency.

They thought it a problem to be guided alone by physician writer, who advises parents, and I expect you joined their complaints in the common notion that "freedom of expression" will continue to be the song of this era instead of discipline in home, school and church.

In fact, a Pennsylvania reform school superintendent observed that my effort to [illegible] a curtain trip would await a reward in heaven, as none was possible on this earth. I disagree.

This juvenile delinquency decadence of our nation is not a child problem or a medical problem. It is a national symptom of a social degeneration involving adults more than children, the first crack that is widening before our eyes in a break of our established culture.

Culture Slipping

If it is not cured in the right way, we will fall down the abyss forecast by the philosophers Spengler and Sorokin, who surmised that western culture was going fast and would result in the rise of a new leadership, possibly oriental. (Since leadership in world culture has traveled westward.)

Certainly, no nation is stronger than the character of its women and children, no matter how many battleships and planes it may have.

So says an experienced expert [illegible] for Walter M. Germain, crime prevention police at Saginaw, Mich., has recognized juvenile delinquency as a character defect.

Build Character or Prisons

For some years, he has been speaking and writing of his experience, saying the only alternatives are the building of character or more prisons. He even puts a physician writer in paraphrasing "a psychopathic breakdown of civilization" unless the current inaren of crime by adolescents is reversed.

His theories of what should be done only partly coincide with mine, yet police are furnishing excellent leadership in some localities like Saginaw. In Morristown, N. J., for instance Detective Lieutenant Valerin went to the mayor with the old familiar story that there was not much police could do about juvenile delinquents until crime was committed except to notify parents of damages due, etc. The mayor suggested a plan of police action leadership.

Lieutenant Valerin called in 20 boys and their parents. They founded an organization known as the Junior Legion of Honor. The kids like it. A playground has been set aside for them, and character leadership has been established under older boys.

Plan Called Success

As a result of this alone, the local paper says Morristown now has no juvenile delinquency problems which face other communities. Here discipline was obtained by wise leadership and example.

How the foolish theorists can continue to advocate the freedom of expression in the face of such obvious evidence of the critical necessity for the establishment of national youth character, is more than I can understand. Adults must practice repressions and restraints against animal inclinations and appetites in their own lives, although some do it little better than the juveniles.

Until the child mind itself can develop to the point of similar practice, obviously he must have leadership by example and discipline—through a renewal of the waning responsibilities of home, school and church, to which may now be added, police.

The two editors can quit if they want to. My desk will continue to be a clearing house for such information to serve as a guidance for new understanding of and action on the problem.

SIGRID SCHULTZ'S "Germany Will Try It Again" is another valuable contribution to the world's case against Germany. Its title is worth notice. Miss Schultz does not say "The Nazis Will Try It Again." As did Konrad Heiden in his "Der Fuehrer," Miss Schultz traces our present situation directly to the Pan-German movement, which means that it began well back in the nineteenth century, if not, indeed, in the time of Caesar.

At the first sign of weakness, she believes, the Germans will begin once more to plot Der Tag. We may win this war, we may even win a third world war. But unless we keep our heads and our strength we shall never be free of the German menace. Her proof begins while the first World War was still in progress, at a time when Miss Schultz herself was in Germany as an enemy alien, having been taken there just before the war began by her father.

Months before November 11, 1918, she writes, Ludendorff and others were busily preparing the basis for the current war. What amounted to a secret general staff was formed, means of camouflaging caches of arms, of bootlegging an army, were prepared. By the middle 'twenties Germany was operating full blast on the new system, one example of which is the effrontery with which the money stolen from the Allies' rightful reparations demand was put into modern factories which in turn were so designed that they could be converted overnight into war plants.

She also shows how wonderfully the Germans have used familiar trends, and now they can use them again. The cry for a "leader" is one; the delusion that Nazism protects private enterprise is another. The fright technique (the specter of Bolshevism) has been useful and so has the use of well-meaning people and fifth columnists to stir racial friction. The legend of German efficiency and "kultur" has been most valuable, and on the other hand, we are told that we must be kind to the Germans, or they will revolt. Planted rumors to instill distrust of our Allies are old stuff, but Miss Schultz shows how they work.

4,601,580 Checks

Early in January, the office of dependency benefits, handling family allowance and pay allotments on behalf of more than 10 million dependents of army men and women, mailed 4,601,580 checks in a single day. Thousands of allotments are lumped in single checks covering amounts payable to insurance companies and banks, which accounts for the fact fewer checks are mailed than the total number of active accounts, which recently reached the five million mark.

Approximately three million of the total are family allowances, paid directly to wives, children and other dependent relatives of enlisted personnel. Nearly half the money disbursed in family allowance payments is deducted from the soldiers' pay; the rest is contributed by the government. The two million Class E allotments of pay are assignments entirely from the army men and women's pay; of these more than a million are sent directly to dependents, with the remainder going to insurance companies, to the credit of dependents.

The office of dependency benefits is situated in Newark, N. J.

Soviets Criticized for Describing Pope and Vatican as Pro-Fascist.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE publication by Izvestia, which is the official newspaper of the Soviet government, of an article calling the Pope and the Vatican "pro-Fascist," is a highly improper action.

By the terms of the declaration on Italy, adopted at Moscow Fascists are recognized as enemies of the United Nations. Therefore, the name "Fascist" is no longer a word that can be used loosely by journalists. It is a word which has to be used carefully, especially by governments, because we are now pledged to treat Fascists in Italy as enemies.

Now, at this moment, British, French and American armies are fighting to take Rome. When they enter the city, the Vatican and the Pope will be within our lines. This is a very great responsibility. If we are to discharge it well, there must be no shadow of misunderstanding as to the policy of the United Nations for which the British and the American governments are here the trustees.

The Vatican, as a temporal power, is a neutral state with which the United States and Britain have friendly relations. We intend, of course, to maintain them, and to protect scrupulously and cordially all the established rights of the church wherever our military authority extends, and neither to practice ourselves nor to countenance from others, while we have the responsibility in Italy, any interference in the affairs of the church.

In so far as the Izvestia article means or implies any intent to cause a deviation from this policy, either by the Soviet government or by inciting popular agitation in Italy, we must reject it firmly unequivocally and entirely.

Reform Plan

Passing on to other matters, there is the constitutional reform, explained by Foreign Commissar Molotov, under which the 16 republics of the Soviet Union are to have their own national army formations and separate diplomatic representation abroad. This is a development which is likely to have far-reaching, and it may well be in the main beneficial, consequences upon the relations between Russia and the other great powers of the world.

It is a measure of decentralization in what will be the largest and most powerful state in the world. The decentralization of great states is one of the surest, probably the surest, guaranty they can give against military aggression.

It is very difficult indeed for a genuinely decentralized state, which must consult with its constituent members, to plan and execute a great campaign of conquest. Japan is a highly centralized empire, and Germany, which was in its more peaceable days the Germanies, has reached the peak of centralization under Hitler. Therefore, as a matter of principle, the decentralizing reform in the Soviet Union is auspicious.

We may note that the reforms promise the formation of national armies for the various nationalities within the Soviet Union. Of all measures of decentralization the formation of national armies is the most convincing. When in a vast empire the army itself is not imperial, regardless of the nationality of the recruits, then the spirit of independence is bound to grow and the power to assert it.

Molotov's speech shows that he had to reassure some Russians that such a deep change in the unity of the Russian forces would not be allowed to impair their fighting efficiency in this war.

Proof of Sincerity

This is an indication of the reality of the reform. And if history teaches us anything about these things, it is that when distinct nations within a great state are promised their own armies, they will, when the external enemy no longer threatens them, become insistent that the promise be carried out. And as they achieve this most practical of all the rights of sovereignty, they will use the power it gives them to become more and more autonomous in all their affairs.

Power Politics at Stake

This Russian development needs to be onsidered in connection with the problem raised by Gen. Smuts of South Africa in his speech last November, and more recently by Lord Halifax. It is the problem of whether and how the United Kingdom can "claim equal partnership" in the company of "titans" like Russia and the United States.

The problem is posed by the fact that, though the British empire is the largest political organization in the world, it is so genuinely and thoroughly decentralized in its most important parts, which will include India, that it cannot and does not act as a single power in the world.

The United Kingdom, with less than 50,000,000 and a low birthrate, carries the principal responsibility for Europe in dealing with Russia, which, in spite of its huge losses in this war, may look forward to a population, living on rich resources, which will surpass 200,000,000.

Vast Power

Quite evidently, this vast Russian power wielded as a unit by a highly centralized government in Moscow would be a formidable partner in the councils of Europe and of the world. This same power, if it became decentralized into a federation of national republics, especially on its European and Asiatic frontiers, would be a more complex and therefore a more cumbersome, and, therefore, a more comfortable political system to deal with.

The objection that Russia will ask for "16 votes" at the peace conference is an amateurish objection. For it supposes the impossible, that there will be a peace conference at which decisions will be taken by counting votes. Obviously the only way the decisions can be taken is under the leadership of the great powers and by their consent, and in consultation and, so far as possible, in agreement with the other powers which are concerned with the decision. Voting cannot and will not be the method of deciding the great issues, and the very idea of voting in things of this sort should be put out of our minds.

The centralized state is a monster even at its most benevolent stage and, just because it is indispensable in war, peace will bring a reaction against it.

If that reaction goes too far, it will produce anarchy. But it must go a very considerable distance or there will be popular explosions. It is not unlikely, then, that Stalin, who knows his Russia, has been reading correctly the signs of the times.

Veterans After This War Must See America's Favorite Game of C[illegible] ing Them the Brushoff.

By DAMON RUNYON

WHEN the [illegible] came on [illegible] during [illegible] and defense effort [illegible] important preliminaries about our [illegible] there started arise and [illegible] and void.

These [illegible] were obtained [illegible] the slander [illegible] by the various organizations which are [illegible] us. That is to say, they are [illegible] to develop [illegible] strength in [illegible] ship for any [illegible].

This [illegible] enunciatorially [illegible] politicians. They have long feared the [illegible] that the veterans might one day [illegible] as a political group. It is a fear that [illegible] to the G. A. R. that dominated the [illegible] the north after the Civil war.

Not being political, the veterans' organizations of today have no weight with the politicians. They can only use moral suasion to gain their ends. Hence, the politicians [illegible] afraid to temper with veterans' benefits [illegible] suits their convenience, and in normal times that is always popular with the civilian population.

NOW take the case of labor. Through its organizations, labor also acquired political power, no bones about the practice. It does not hesitate to flaunt this with menacing import before the eyes of politicians, and as a result there has been no monkeying with labor's gains.

Perhaps our veterans of World war I made a mistake in organizing on a non-political basis, but I have no doubt it was in a spirit of patriotism that could not possibly contemplate unkindness toward men who had offered their lives to their country.

They probably felt that any lack of gratitude on the part of the nation with respect to the veterans of other wars was an [illegible] that could not be repeated in a more enlightened day. So they organized on an altruistic basis, placing their case in the hands of the statesmen in Washington with a confidence that was truly touching.

And they got a kicking around they will always remember. Their handicap was that they could not say to the statesmen, "You will lose votes from our organization at the polls." They could not say this when benefits that were [illegible] grudgingly given them were set aside later. But labor could and did say it.

THE number of war veterans up to this war has been comparatively small. Fresh generations of civilians who had no sympathy with them came to voting age and to the sentiment of war veterans that is characteristic of all civilians. Thus, even as a political organization veterans might not have been a powerful group.

But when this war is over, there will be between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 veterans. Millions of their family connections and even the oncoming generation of voters will have been educated to an understanding of the veterans' cause. This vast group, under patriotic young leaders, could dominate the political situation in the United States, make it certain the men who bore arms and the enemy in this war get a square deal.

This group which might even become a new political party after the war, could ally itself with older organizations of veterans without making the serious error the [illegible] did of foreswearing the only method by which they can strike terror to the hearts of politicians and end the great old American pastime of making the veteran a [illegible] football.

Wartime Manners

By Truman Twill

It's a cinch no one else is going to put a good word for the slap-happy saps who supply the people's needs for everything imaginable with no help and darned little appreciation from the people, so here goes.

If we worked in a grocery store and some dame tied us up for half an hour figuring out her rationing arithmetic for her and explaining for the umpteenth time that her pet opinions about OPA and the government in general haven't a darned thing to do with the regulations that overworked clerks and checkers are supposed to obey, she'd get a can of spinach spring beets right in the eye.

If we operated a filling station and [illegible] unessential drivers for miles around were [illegible] a sleet storm to come barging in yelling for immediate, personal attention to their [illegible] inflated tires, rundown batteries, leaking radiators and sloppy windshields, we'd [illegible] a handful of ignition and show them some [illegible] works.

If we worked in a department store and had to patrol the equivalent of a small Texas county, and some twitter-brain went through [illegible] store like a burglar ransacking the premises, we would reach under the counter and get the bat with which we could give the galoot a [illegible] pound fracture of the wrist and then [illegible] No-Sale with a bop on the top of her [illegible].

If we worked in a restaurant and a customer gave us one of those books in which "I am a slave to my stomach, see, and I want you to become the same, see, and no [illegible] and no excuses but just give me exactly what I want, including a pound of butter for [illegible] or I will start flinging my weight around [illegible] joint!" we would invite that customer right ahead and would have an ice pick [illegible] to give him something to think about [illegible] first twitch.

If we worked in a repair shop and a sniffling galoot demanded that we [illegible] bicycle, call Donald Nelson and steal [illegible] own grandmother to fix up the [illegible] chances are went on the fritz because [illegible] too dumb to take care of it, or tried [illegible] it with a crowbar before yelling for [illegible] would bend it over his noggin and [illegible] out the door with a foot planted firmly [illegible] rear bumper.

Wherever it happened to be, if we [illegible] honestly we were doing our best [illegible] worst possible conditions, we would [illegible] sass from any member of the public [illegible] to meet us half way, or who snivele[illegible] because he was fond of foot-kissing [illegible] ness enterprise had the time to do it. [illegible] kissing should be continued ad nauseam [illegible] duration of the war. Maybe we'd [illegible] business, but while we lasted we'd get [illegible] satisfaction out of a one-man [illegible] against the public's own bad [illegible] wartime.

PACIFIC

the second day of invasion and on the same day that forces went ashore at that point. The deep anchorage of boomerang-shaped Kwajalein islet on the southern end of Kwajalein atoll is seriously menaced, with one third of the islet already in American hands.

The airfield and the anchorage are the keys to Kwajalein, world's largest atoll, promising the Americans investment of all its more than 30 islets surrounding a 655-square-mile lagoon.

Capture of Roi airfield and the invasion of Kwajalein islet were announced yesterday by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Admiral Nimitz' Wednesday communique made clear the choice of Kwajalein for the invasion scene had fooled the Japanese. Parallel lines of eastern and western atolls make up the Marshalls, with Kwajalein near the center of the western group. Apparently, the Japanese had looked for an attack on the eastern group or at the southern extremities of either chain.

American Marines landed Tuesday on Namur, adjacent to Roi on the northern end of Kwajalein atoll.

While Marines and Army veterans of the Aleutian campaign expanded their holdings on Kwajalein, invaded Monday, other fortified atolls in the mid-Pacific Marshalls were kept under heavy attack.

The most powerful fleet ever assembled and hundreds of planes added their shells and bombs to the more than 14,000 tons of explosives which have been poured on the Marshalls since Sunday.

Official reports, telling of moderate casualties and no losses among naval units, offered no grounds for belief the Japanese Navy has put in an appearance or that the Nipponese airforce has offered any serious challenge.

Marshalls Battle Progressing Favorably

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Reports thus far from the Marshall islands operations show the central Pacific battle is "progressing favorably," Undersecretary of War Patterson said today.

He told a news conference the 4th Marine division and the 7th Army division have encountered heavy resistance but casualties so far have been "moderate."

The landings on Kwajalein and Roi were preceded by "heavy and accurate" naval and aerial gunfire which silenced shore batteries, provided cover for the invading forces, destroyed or neutralized enemy airfields and swept the skies clear of enemy aircraft, Patterson said.

Capture of the Marshalls, Patterson pointed out, will "widen the cracks in the outer defense ring" of the Japanese empire and these cracks may clear the way for advances on the Philippines or Tokyo itself.

Patterson noted that although the bulk of our naval force is now in the area west of Hawaii, the Japanese fleet has not put in appearance and is showing evidences of "timidity." He said as the advance westward continues the security of the western hemisphere will be increased. The island defense barrier for this hemisphere now has been moved 2,000 miles farther west, he said.

Tully Township's Honor Roll of 69 Names Dedicated

Dedication of an honor roll in tribute to residents of Tully township serving with the armed forces was held last night when a communitywide program was presented at the Martel school. Today the honor roll bearing 69 names was to be erected on the schoolhouse grounds. Through an oversight the name of Floyd Jackson was omitted when the names were placed on the roll. This will be inscribed on the honor roll as soon as possible, the committee stated today.

The board has a blue background with the names inscribed in black letters and has a decorative finish of lattice work. As others from the community, or whose parents reside in the community, leave for service their names will be added. The committee, made up of the township trustees, asks that they be notified and of omissions and also when men or women leave for service.

Approximately 150 persons attended the exercises last night, at which Fred Baldinger, chairman of the township trustees and of honor roll arrangements, presided. As the stage curtains were drawn to reveal the honor roll at either side of which stood a school girl dressed in white, Miss Eleanor Jean Grant, music instructor in the county schools, and Miss Rosemary Warrick sang "When the Lights Go On All Over the World."

The dedication speech was given by Rev. Charles H. Edgar, pastor of the Methodist church at Iberia, and the address for the evening was by Otto Mills of Caledonia. Music was furnished by pupils of the Martel school.

The honor roll was provided through the general township fund and will be in charge of the township trustees, Mr. Baldinger, Ellis Kennedy and Elmer Gunther.

Rally Launches Sale at Old Fort Mills

Old Ford Mills, Marion soybean processing plant, launched its Fourth War Loan efforts at a rally of workers yesterday, and this morning one of its departments had already gone over the top by a substantial margin.

Employes were assembled yesterday afternoon at a new concrete block building constructed by the company to house its maintenance and repair shop, and which also houses a recreation room where men may eat their lunches. The building is equipped with showers, lockers and also houses the office of the purchasing department.

Harold J. Grigsby, chairman of the payroll deduction division of the Marion County War Finance committee, and Lewis Taclet, plant manager, both spoke briefly, urging the workers to go the limit in war bond purchases to back up the nation's fighting men.

Elmer W. Loy is chairman of the Fourth War Loan drive at the plant, with Mac Fuelber acting as his assistant. The company's goal is $2,500 for individual buyers.

The feed department, first to go over the top, had 112 per cent of its quota this morning, and the office group was well on the way to its quota with 43 per cent raised to date.

World Still Seeks Answer To Red Diplomatic Move

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Soviet Union's startling extension of the sovereignty of its 16 component republics to include military and diplomatic affairs has left the outside world in the position of the scientist who has witnessed a phenomenon which he recognizes as having momentous potentialities but which he isn't able to explain with finality.

Moscow's gesture patently has as many possibilities as a hedgehog has quills. In yesterday's column I mentioned briefly what looks like the most far-reaching of these, and I invite your attention to it again because of the effect which it may have on the world's changing political situation. This is that the Soviet reorganization may result in additional countries joining this Red commonwealth of nations.

No Bar To Expansion

The reconstruction leads, it seems to me, to create a commonwealth of such flexibility that other nations may become members irrespective of whether they are geographically contiguous to Russia. I cited merely as examples, the cases of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, all of which have developed Communist parties. Should they adopt the Soviet form of government, there would seem to be no reason why they shouldn't become members of the Soviet Union with the same degree of sovereignty as the present members have.

This also might be true of other countries whose political complexions have become doubtful since the war. We mustn't forget that the pre-war governments of many European countries are in the melting-pot. Even great nations like Germany, France and Italy are on the uncertain list.

In short, the end of the European conflict might find the Soviet Union with considerably more than its present sixteen members. The late fanatical Leon Trotzky, fiery exponent of Red world revolution, could hardly have envisaged such possibilities as exist now. It was Stalin who shelved Trotzky's wild - eyed dream and turned to development of Russia's resources and army—a program which has resulted in the Soviet's present strength.

Problem for Post-War Period

Even if there are no acquisitions to the union, the present membership could create a tremendous problem in the construction of any post-war "League of Nations." The point is, of course, that since each of the component states of the union is privileged to have separate relations with the outside world, Moscow would in effect—should it insist on the point—have sixteen votes in a League of Nations. All other countries would have one, excepting that the British Commonwealth has six, counting its dominions and India.

Now that's one of the rocks on which President Wilson's hopes of American membership in the League of Nations crashed. The United States senate in refusing to join the league based its action in part on the fact that the British would have six votes to our one. This might result in the United States being voted into a position which it didn't like.

Whatever may happen in the matter of multiple voting power, the autonomy of the sixteen Soviet republics will give the union great bargaining strength. That certainly is an amazing change in the position of a government which was barred from the League of Nations for a long time, and which was refused diplomatic recognition by many countries, including our own and Britain.

The Soviet reorganization also would seem likely to ease the way for reincorporation of the Baltic states into the union. As sovereign nations they have a right to join the Russian commonwealth.

Tito's Slav Troops Smash Six German Columns

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 3 — Yugoslav troops have smashed six German columns attempting to break through partisan defenses into liberated territory in Slovenia, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Tito said these recent successes against the Germans had been aided materially by a substantial increase in supplies sent him by the allies during the past month and by allied sea and air assaults against German positions in Yugoslavia.

German attacks so far have been scattered, Tito's communique declared, but it added grim fighting continued on the Slovenian battlefront and along the Croat and Dalmatian coastal areas, where the Nazis were trying to prevent landing of allied supplies.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may cause nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills

SOVIET REPUBLICS WILL DEAL DIRECT

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Feb. 3 — The Soviet press said today the Soviet Union's 16 Republics will have the right to enter into relationships with foreign states and conclude agreements with them as the result of reorganization of the foreign affairs commissariat.

Red Star, official Red army organ, said the reorganization was a "new victory for the policy of Lenin and Stalin" and declares the "internal needs of the Republics will be better satisfied by direct relationships with the separate countries."

This seemed to indicate that each of the 16 republics would send envoys to the nations with which Russia has diplomatic relations and that the way would be opened for each to sign treaties or try to send an envoy to each of the 16 republics.

Each republic will have its own commissariat of foreign affairs as well as its national army formations. Red Star made clear in its sweeping explanation of the law passed by the supreme Soviet.

The paper added that single representation by an "abstract representative abroad" no longer could fully answer the growing needs of the 16 republics and that all-union pacts and agreements with other nations also no longer sufficed.

Red Fleet official navy newspaper took the same line.

"The formation of a strong anti-Hitlerite coalition headed by the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States, the success of the Moscow and Teheran conferences characterize the expansion of the international connections of our state," said Red Fleet.

"In these relations a single all-union representation board cannot fully guarantee the growing manifold and specific economic and cultural needs of the republics."

Izvestia, official government organ, adopted the same tone, and every leading editorial in today's Soviet press stressed the theory that a single Soviet ambassador in each country no longer can adequately handle the affairs of the Soviet Union's 16 republics.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman had nothing to say on the subject, indicating any comment must come from Washington.

Pittsburgh Physician Killed by Patient

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 3 — Dr. Louis I. Sebulman, 42, president of the Pittsburgh medical forum, was shot and killed last night as he left his office, and shortly afterward a woman walked into central police station and calmly remarked, according to acting Sgt. Leo Walsh:

"I just shot a man. Here is the gun."

Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan identified the woman as Miss Martha Ashear, a 38-year-old seamstress and former patient of the slain physician.

Monaghan said she told him she fired two bullets from a .38 caliber revolver at the prominent doctor "because I blame him for my troubles."

Rommel Says West Wall Ready for Invasion

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 3—"The final touches have been given to German defense works in the west and the West Wall is now completely ready for the allied invasion force," German Marshal Erwin Rommel was quoted as saying today by the Paris radio.

Gen. Alfred Jodl, Adolf Hitler's personal military aid, inspected the fortifications yesterday, the radio said, adding "there is considerable nervousness on both sides of the channel."

"The coastal defenses are a formidable affair of steel, iron and stone," the broadcast continued. "The whole coastline is studded with an array of heavy batteries of all calibers."

Declares Lepke Planned To Murder Official

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3 — Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and Lepke Mendel, Inc.' associates plotted to kill a public official who was investigating them, Governor Thomas E. Dewey was told yesterday at a clemency hearing for Lepke and two aides.

Burton B. Turkus, assistant district attorney of Kings county, opposing pleas of counsel for Lepke, Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone that their lives be spared, said:

"The life of that public official was spared only because the gangsters feared that the murder would bring down on the heads of organized crime the wrath of the whole nation."

Turkus did not name the public official involved.

Dewey, while special prosecutor in Manhattan and later New York county district attorney, probed the racketeering activities of Lepke and his associates.

The three are under sentence to die Feb. 10 for the murder of Samuel Rosen, Brooklyn candy store owner, in 1936, for which they were convicted in 1941.

OFFICER CANDIDATE PROGRAM CURTAILED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — The army's officer candidate schools, which graduated 240,000 graduates, have been ordered to a monthly quota of 2,500 to 3,000 as the result of a prospect, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson announced today. The schools will be closed soon as necessary to meet officer requirements and expect a peak of 23,000 graduates in December 1942.

By the end of 1943 and November of 1944 almost 13,000 of the officers were enlisted men sent home from combat areas for training. Few officer candidate schools established overseas have graduated about 2,500 men, however, the one in Australia is the only one now OCS still operating.

In addition to OCS graduates 2,000 are commissioned overseas have been commissioned directly by about 10,000 enlisted men, warrant officers and flight officers and a number of civilians, and the Army in the United State has commissioned directly about 3,000 enlisted men and 3,000 warrant officers and flight officers.

Of the 28 officer candidate schools other operating in the country, seven have been discontinued and four are no longer accepting candidates.

Film Villain Pursues War Job

By ROBBIN COONS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — You all know the movie villain whose spare-time delight is puttering among his rose and his petunia. Comes now his war-time variant, John Miljan by name, who gets not only delight but profit by tinkering in a war plant.

John Miljan

More than a year ago, this inveterate screen sinner dropped in a little factory near his home in West Los Angeles to ask advice on a small locomotive he was building for his youngest boy. That's when he ran smack into the manpower shortage, first-hand, and before he left he had an offer of 75 cents an hour for the tinkering that had been his hobby. He took it, and now for 10 hours a night, he's helping on precision instruments for the Air Corps.

Pay Raised

Even when he's making movies, as at present, he gets in his war licks, and he's had raises to 95 cents hourly. Peanuts compared to movie pay, no doubt, but darn satisfying—especially with his two older boys in the armed forces.

Sin has been in the sun business since 1922, when he wearied of the "road" and decided to try movies. His first screen role was that of a typical Miljan smoothie, and he has been committing, aiding, or abetting crime and seduction ever since. In one year, 1929, he played in more talking pictures than any other actor. Occasionally, as in the recent "Bombardier," he has strayed into paths of virtue, but he likes sin better. He is at it again in "The Merry Monahans," a musical comedy in which he takes advantage, but smoothly, of pretty Ann Blyth. His role as a fading matinee idol is more polished than the routine Miljan renegade, but it is still mean enough, he say, to be satisfying. His reason: bad men on the screen last longer than heroes.

Some Changes

And they do. Some even get to be heroes through sheer wickedness. Humphrey Bogart recently, and now Alan Curtis in "Phantom Lady," have followed the heel-to-hero road blazed by Clark Gable, James Cagney, William Powell, George Sanders, Lloyd Nolan, Edward G. Robinson, Paul Lukas, George Raft and the newer Turhan Bey.

And even heroes seem to weary of heroism. Heavy to Alan Curtis in "Phantom Lady" is Franchot Tone. Smooth romantic Charles Boyer is the menace to Ingrid Bergman in "Gaslight." Fred MacMurray in "Double Indemnity" is a murdering blackguard, as was Joseph Cotten in "Shadow of a Doubt." Maybe it's time to call out the vice squad.

DELAWARE FATHER SCORED FOR NEGLECT OF FAMILY

Judge Calls Case "Most Shameful" In His Court Record.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., Feb. 3—The maximum penalty for non-support is the alternative Hoy Fisher, Delaware lumber dealer, faces if he fails to carry out orders of Juvenile Judge H. D. House in a hearing yesterday on a charge of neglect and abandonment of his wife and eight children. The judge, terming the case the most shameful ever to come to his attention, ordered Fisher placed on probation, told him to apply at the U. S. Employment Service for work and make payments of $24 weekly to the juvenile officer for support of the children. The judge said an investigation showed four of the children were ill and all were suffering from undernourishment. Fisher's alternative to following the court's instructions is a year's imprisonment and a $500 fine.

Three of the children were admitted to John M. Case hospital for treatment of the disorders of the court and five were placed in the county children's home. The oldest child, Jean, died of a throat affection a few days after being admitted to the hospital and two others are still receiving medical attention.

Every honorably discharged veteran in the U. S., disabled in the line of duty, is entitled to a pension for life or as long as he may be disabled.

Infantile Paralysis Veterans on War Factory Firing Line

HAPPY WARRIOR is Mrs. T. [illegible], a polio victim, at [illegible] a San Diego plant.

By The Associated Press

On the nation's war factory firing line are thousands of "veterans"—men and women who have won a life-and-death battle with the scourge of infantile paralysis.

Their story of valor, of how they fought and overcome physical disabilities once considered insurmountable, is written into the records of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

North, south, east and west, says the foundation, these health fighters who stood off poliomyelitis at its worst have found vital jobs—either essential to the war effort or civilian life.

Three boys working full time in the Army's Signal Corps laboratories in Eatontown, N. J., exemplify the spirit of polio victims, says the foundation.

They are Robert Conklin, 23, East Hampton, Long Island; Michael Greko, 27, Saginaw, Mich., and Charles A. Bealer, 22, Allentown, Pa.

Brought together through their work, the boys now live together and share expenses as well as leisure activities.

One Was Football Player

Conklin was a husky football player in 1935 when he was stricken by infantile paralysis. Treatments at Warm Springs, Ga., enabled him to get around again with braces.

It was tough going until he landed the laboratory job, and made good as a test engineering aide.

Greko, who gets around with the aid of canes, was attacked by the disease in 1919. He received training in his home state of Michigan and obtained a job as a draftsman in the meteorological branch of the laboratories.

Bealer, who is a draftsman and also Greko, plans to get into the airplane industry when the war is over. He has been in crutches since he was paralyzed in 1925.

In their spare time the foundation reports, they serve as aircraft spotters, air raid wardens, blood donors and with the Long Branch Central center.

Work At Many Tasks

They also have joined the Civil Air Patrol and hope to land assignments with the Coast Guard auxiliary.

The U. S. employment service has records of the rehabilitated working on all sorts of armaments, and on ships and aircraft.

A Seattle shipyard has employed a 54-year-old victim who walks as a flat welder, even though one leg is paralyzed and he must walk with crutches.

A 18-year-old boy works as a junior draftsman in a Columbus war plant. A few years ago he was a wheel chair patient.

All these jobs, says the foundation, once were considered impossible for victims of the crippling disease.

16 BILLION TAX BILL PROPOSED

Willkie Urges Increase Beyond Any Limit Hitherto Imagined Possible.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—Wendell L. Willkie says the nation needs now "a tough tax program" of at least 16 billion dollars to help pay for the war or it risks losing "in debt the victory we have gained in blood."

He urged increased taxes "beyond any limit that we have hitherto imagined possible" in an address last night at the first of a series of New York Times forums on home front problems.

But when the war ends, Willkie said, the wartime taxation program must be revised with taxes "minimized rather than maximized."

"For, properly managed, and with encouragement to expand, our peace time economy will yield more tax income from relatively low rates, both individual and corporate, than from relatively high ones," he said.

Willkie, a prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, observed in a question period following his address that when the people thought their representatives didn't heed them "they'll get new ones, and that's what I'm trying to do, too."

Willkie said inadequate war time revenue meant "we will transfer such a load of debt to the future as to jeopardize the very things for which we fight." He predicted a postwar public debt of more than 300 billion dollars.

He termed unrealistic and misleading the treasury proposal for more than 10 billions in taxes, saying it included a refund of more than two billions after the war and thus provided a net increase of eight billions which "is far too low."

"We should aim to raise in additional taxes more than double that proposal," he said, adding "the fact is * * * we must actually materially lower the American standard of living during the war."

He declared every dollar beyond the precautions needed to preserve effective manpower and the industrial structure must be "ruthlessly taxed."

Willkie said the administration "has counted too little on the people's sense of obligation."

"But while I sincerely believe that the people will accept these burdens if the issues are made clear, I know that they will at the same time demand an economy in government of a severity equal to their sacrifices," he added.

Some Republicans Critical of Program

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Wendell L. Willkie's call for an additional multi-billion dollar wartime tax program drew swift retorts from some Republicans on Capitol Hill today, one of whom described Willkie's revenue proposal as "even more unrealistic and unsound than the President's."

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, Republican leader of the house ways and means committee, promptly challenged the program, describing it as "unrealistic and unsound," and said:

"All agree we must raise every possible dollar by taxation in order to minimize borrowing and put the future, but there is a limit to our ability to pay taxes even in wartime. * * * Congress rejected the President's $1,550,000,000 tax program because it would have wiped out the middle class and jeopardized the solvency of all business, yet Mr. Willkie would raise double the amount proposed by the administration."

"He fails to show how any such amount could be raised in addition to the $45,000,000,000 we now pay. We all know any increase would have to come from the lower income groups, as was the case with the treasury program."

Rep. Carlson (R-Kans.), a ways and means member, said:

"My observation is that rather than increasing our tax burden we should make every effort to eliminate waste and extravagance in federal expenditures."

A Democratic senator, Ed Johnson of Colorado, commented: "I don't take Willkie seriously on any of his suggestions."

PLANT AT KENTON TO OPERATE AGAIN

Special to The Star

KENTON, Feb. 3—Purchase of the shops, tracks and a tract of several acres of land from the Central States Equipment Company, just south of Kenton, was announced today by Frank G. Luth, vice president of the International Railway Car and Equipment company, which expects to put the plant in operation at once, putting on a force of about 50 men.

Luth said the plant will be used for repair work on cars and equipment.

The purchase of the old plant here by International Railway provides the type of operation just as soon as any facilities are available. The plant will work with the largest of Kenton industries and will employ at least 250 men, most of them recruited from local labor ranks, it was explained to Kenton businessmen.

SUZIE STARTS EARLY

By The Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—They're never too young to be kissed, a couple of soldiers visiting here discovered. The two knocked on the door of Mrs. Robert Long's home and asked for Susie Mrs. Long said she would call her daughter. The GI's exclaimed that they had got Miss Susie Long's name from love letters of cigarette girls from it and asked her to write.

So Mrs. Long called Suzie, aged two. After gulping slightly, the GI's became quite fond of Suzie's parents, promised to visit her again, and a Red Cross Christmas celebration.

BUCYRUS COUNCIL ACTS ON OFFER

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Feb. 3—Bucyrus city council Tuesday took a new step aimed at settlement of the 12 year old New York Central railroad controversy, adopted legislation providing pay raises from $10 to $20 a month for all city employes, voted to merge the service director and city engineer posts and officially established the new Bucyrus Service Center.

Upon motion of councilman Joe Kaupp, council voted to send Mayor R. L. Hertzer and J. C. Hull to New York to confer with railroad heads as a move to bring about a closer understanding between the railroad and the city. Before definite action is taken on the offer of $32,000 of the railroad for a quit claim on Bucyrus railroad shops, Council is scheduled to vote on the sum offer for February 15. A delegation of railroad men appeared at council meeting again this week to protest acceptance of the offer.

In the general pay raise authorized by council, most raises were for $10 with the exception of nurses at City hospital who were given a $20 raise in recognition of the cut in pay made during the depression years which were never restored.

The city service department was given authority to advertise for new $15,419 servicemen's recreational fund, provided by the federal security agency hereby officially accepting the program for Bucyrus. Coincident to the action was the appointment Tuesday of Robert W. Barnes, 43, Coldwater, Mich., teacher and coach, as the executive director of the new servicemen's recreational program here. Barnes will come to Bucyrus Feb. 14 to assume charge of the recreational work and the new Service Center now undergoing remodeling at 312 South Sandusky avenue which will be open for use at about the same time.

In the vote to merge the service director and engineer's jobs, council authorized the contained salary of $2,700 for Service Director W. F. Pfeiderer.

ENDS LIFE IN GALION

GALION, Feb. 3—Ill health was believed to have been the cause for Jesse Arman, 84, to have taken his own life. He was found hanging in the garage at the home of his niece and nephew, Miss Nora and Frank Garverick. The body was taken to Johnsville for funeral arrangements.

MRS. HAMMERLE DIES

MARTSVILLE, Feb. 3—Mrs. Bari Hammerle, 50, of Marguerite Route 4, who was identified with her husband in the restaurant and hotel trade here for over 20 years, died at University hospital, Columbus, Wednesday. Funeral services will be held at the W. H. Faulkner funeral home here Friday.

New York Papers Won't Publish on Feb. 12, 22

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—Major New York afternoon daily newspapers plan to omit publication on Lincoln's birthday Feb. 12, and on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, to save newsprint.

They are the World-Telegram, Sun, Post, Journal American and the Brooklyn Eagle.

It was made clear, however, that in the event of an invasion of Europe or other national emergency, which would require publication in the public interest, the plan to suspend for the holidays would be dropped.

The general suspension for these holidays will be the first in history.

Green Camp Church Thanked for Gift

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP — Members of the Green Camp Methodist church have received a letter of thanks for a Christmas package from Pvt. Wallace R. McNeil "somewhere in North Africa."

Pvt. McNeil, son of Herbert McNeil of the Green Camp-Pleasant road, was among the first American soldiers to enter San Stefano, Sicily. Following the conquest of that city, he moved on in Sicily, and onto the invasion of the mainland of Italy.

Some weeks ago while engaged in taking certain mountain objectives "on the road to Rome" Pvt. McNeil froze his feet, and had to be hospitalized.

In his letter he related how the wounded and sick were transported to base hospitals in Africa by the air corps.

At the base hospital, he said, they are entertained with movies, and have been visited by such stars as Bob Hope, Frances Langford and Joe E. Brown.

During the conquest of cities in Sicily, Pvt. McNeil said the priest was usually the first person to greet American soldiers, and that during rest periods priests of the conquered cities would talk to the men and express their thanks for being freed from German domination.

He said that during the time he was in Italy Mt. Vesuvius was erupting.

POWER RATE RAISED BY GALION COUNCIL

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 2—Power rates for consumers of over 2500 kilowatt hours, which will hit the manufacturers group, were raised in an ordinance passed by Galion City council, Tuesday night.

The present rate is one cent per K.W.H. for consumers using over 10,000 kilowatt hours, but the new rate is set at one and one-half cents per kilowatt hour for all using over 2,500 K. W. H. Small consumers of power will not be affected by the raise.

This new rate goes back to the 1937 level and repeals the lowered rate which became effective June, 1938.

Charles Geiger, service director, told council Tuesday the increase in power rates for the large consumer became necessary because of the increase in operating and producing costs at Galion's Municipal Light and Power plant.

Figures show that this raise in power rates will bring in revenue to the municipally owned plant of approximately $20,000 a year.

In a resolution passed by council Mayor William Amann and Service Director Charles Geiger were authorized to enter into an agreement with the State of Ohio, to police, stock with fish, and grant privileges of fishing, at the new city "Hurley" reservoir, southwest of Galion.

Youths Arrested For Breaking Shop Windows

Two Marion county young men, ages 18 and 16, were arrested Wednesday night at the Reams sandwich shop on South State street by police after they allegedly had broken windows there and caused a general disturbance. The elder boy was fined $100 and costs when he pleaded guilty in municipal court to charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct, with Judge Dexter Hazen agreeing to suspend half the fine if damages at the shop are paid. The other boy was turned over to the juvenile court and taken to the juvenile detention home to await a hearing.

Five Minor Accidents Reported in Marion

BERGDOLL RELEASED FROM U. S. PRISON

By The Associated Press

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Feb. 3—Attired in a government issued civilian suit Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, 50, notorious draft dodger of World War I was released today from the Ft. Leavenworth disciplinary barracks where he served a three and a half year term imposed by a military court.

A fellow prisoner who was released at the same time said Bergdoll was met at the gate by his wife in a taxicab.

Mrs. Bergdoll had with her the couple's youngest child. The three left by cab, presumably to return to Kansas City where Mrs. Bergdoll stayed last night.

Bergdoll was received at the prison Nov. 8, 1940, to serve a 3-year term at hard labor for desertion and escaping from custody. He was convicted after returning voluntarily from Germany where he had fled in 1920. He also had a 4-year term from a previous conviction.

Bergdoll, son of a wealthy Philadelphia brewer, was 25 when World war I broke out. He ignored his draft call and went into hiding. Captured in 1920, he was sentenced to five years at hard labor. After serving six months he received permission to leave the prison camp on the pretext he had buried some gold and wished to dig it up. He eluded his guards, sped to Canada and then to Germany.

After his voluntary return to this country he disclosed he had twice made prolonged visits to the United States, both times living at his mother's home.

While in Germany he married Berta Frank, daughter of a villager. They have six children.

Arthur Stafford, who was released today with Bergdoll, said Bergdoll told him he planned to return to his 260-acre farm outside Philadelphia where Mrs. Bergdoll and the children had been living.

Compromise Reached on Service Voting

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—In a quick shift of strategy, senate administration leaders agreed informally today to accept an amendment to pending service vote legislation which would confine use of a proposed federal war ballot largely to members of the armed forces overseas.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) told a reporter he and others of like views would not oppose adoption of a revised amendment by Senator Danaher (R-Conn.) which would make state absentee ballots available to most military personnel in this country.

RUSSIA

que said the Russians were attacking Shepetovka. New Soviet thrusts also were reported on the Nikopol bridgehead while southwest of Dnepropetrovsk the Nazis admittedly were heavily engaged against advancing Soviet forces.

The Germans also were being pushed back inside Estonia, where the Red army driving along the Gulf of Finland west of captured Kingisepp, reached positions along the Narva river, northeast of the ancient seaport of Narva itself. This indicated the Russians now are battling on Estonian soil.

A heavy snowfall over this area made operations easier for Russian ski troops and dispatches said they had penetrated behind the enemy's lines and cut into the network of highways serving as his supply system.

Forty towns northwest and southwest of Kingisepp were captured by Gen Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army yesterday, a Russian communique said. They included Ust-Luga at the mouth of the Luga river on the Gulf of Finland and Monastirek, 17 miles below Kingisepp and five miles from the frontier.

Exact Position Not Clear

The exact position of Govorov's spearheads in the border area was obscure. The broadcast Moscow communique announced capture of Vodkule (or Vodkula) and a host of other points in five miles across the frontier in Estonia near the mouth of the Narva river. Red Star maps, however, show a Russian town named Vezenkule just east of the frontier.

Capture of Kingisepp gave Govorov control of the entire southern shore of the Gulf of Finland, but there were indications the Germans might make a stand in front of Narva with reserves brought up from Reval (Tallinn), western terminus of the railway from Leningrad.

German reports of a Soviet breakthrough in the Dnieper bend and a new Red army attack upon Rovno, 30 miles inside old Poland, by Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ist Ukraine army, remained unconfirmed by Moscow.

Red army troops in the Kingisepp sector reported more than 1,200 Nazis were killed and huge stocks of war material captured.

West of the Leningrad-Moscow trunk rail line, the Russians killed another 1,100 Germans and beat down savage enemy counter-attacks in the Novgorod area where Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army was pushing west toward Lake Peipus, the Soviet communique reported.

(The Nazi-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau said "the full-scale evacuation of Narva had already begun.")

Evacuation of Lutsk indicated Gen. N. F. Vatutin's Ukrainian army has outflanked 50 miles in a northerly direction and was in a position to cut the German lines all along the lower Dniester river and the line of the Narva into Bessarabia, part of which is Rumania. Two days ago the Germans began retreating a new offensive 50 miles east of Lutsk.

Moscow has not yet confirmed the advance British military circles say are reason for serious doubt, although one comment was, of naturally want to hear the Russians confirm it because there always is a chance that the Germans might report a false withdrawal and then claim a recapture later.

The swift advance threatened completely to nullify Marshal Von Manstein's desperate stand around Vinnitsa and Uman in the western Ukraine, attacks which have been shocking the Russians from the Bessarabian border 60 to 70 miles away for several weeks. Should Vatutin sweep down the railroad from Lutsk to Lwow, the estimated 500,000 Germans in the Ukraine could be extricated only through Rumania.

Churches Map World of Peace

By ZACHARY TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—A many Presbyterian [illegible] a soft voice and [illegible] Biblical fact is [illegible] of this groundwork [illegible] actively toward [illegible]

[illegible] pen of the declaration, "Six Points of Peace" [illegible] Federal Council of [illegible] He had started the [illegible] of the war.

[illegible] Many people always have [illegible] nation's major problems [illegible]

Dulles is an international lawyer [illegible] made many diplomatic [illegible] He helped write [illegible] peace. His office is [illegible] floor above Wall street. ### Sees Fellowship Of Nations

Above all, he is not a frustrated [illegible] treaty-making. He [illegible] a vision of a "fellowship of nations" which would do away with power politics and [illegible] which evolves from many conferences [illegible] ecumenical resolutions [illegible]

We must lay down our principles — international fellowship, economic co-operation, peaceful changes in treaties, self-rule ultimately for all peoples, control of arms and religious liberty.

"And make no mistake, the church knows whereof it speaks. Even the truest parish supports world missions, in turn is aware of the seamy side and economic injustices in the world. Here is the source of our love for China and our attitude toward imperialism in India."

How can the church hope for a just peace?

"We shall oppose imperialism, policies for a 'balance of power' or for a rule of force in which the affirmative development of the fellowship of peoples is omitted. Force must be harnessed to justice and equity."

A Plague on Antagonism

And, in practice, Dulles insists that all nation must cease knowing each other by antagonisms.

"We let out Russia at Versailles and spent the next 25 years in thinly-veiled hostilities toward her. Today Russia seems terribly atheistic, but the world needs in its fellowship the contributions of these creative peoples.

"America is stale in its freedom; Russia is dynamic. We have much for each other."

How is America to be committed to such a peace?

"Some of our churches—like the Methodists—are even ringing doorbells to educate our people. Some of us speak and write. We each put forward our plan in the ways we think best.

"The politicians know—and are deeply sensitive.

"You see," says the peace-promoter, "this is a democracy of free people, governed from its beginning by Christian principles. We elect our peace-makers and Christian sentiment can guide them."

LONDON HOTEL SPACE FILLED

Both Aliens and Natives Willing To Live Almost Anywhere.

By DIXIE TIGHE
International News Service War Correspondent.

LONDON—It isn't the bombs that rob you of a roof over your head in this city, it's the crowds.

Hotels and apartment houses bulging with friendly aliens and natives. The natives often prefer the solidity of substantial dwellings to quaint and flimsy quarters, and the friendly aliens are happy to take a long lease on anything from a Jack O'Lantern to a crumbling castle.

The hotel situation recently reached a new peak of hysteria when the Labor Exchange ruled that 75 per cent of the tenancy must be transient; otherwise, the Labor Board would call up a large percentage of the hotel staffs. It is one thing to have necessary help to take care of necessary travelers, another thing to let "permanent" guests have the luxury of full-time servants.

Colonels Get a Break

Colonel John Hay Whitney, who has more than a bungalow in Palm Beach, Long Island, Saratoga and New York City, was among the homeless for a while. Fortunately for him and his room-mate, Colonel Lucius P. Ordway, who calls Palm Beach home, W. Averell Harriman was appointed ambassador to Russia.

Before the new appointee had time to fit his fur mittens, the Colonels Ordway and Whitney [illegible] Harriman's [illegible]

But [illegible] finding a place to [illegible] one knows [illegible] is the key to a [illegible]

In one [illegible] times. On [illegible] asked at the [illegible] taken on a [illegible] An air [illegible] a breakfast of coffee and [illegible] takes two hours to deliver an [illegible] word or an egg, you know. There's a war, on you know. There certainly is on—one between me and the Savoy.

And Then She Moved

There also was trouble about hot milk for coffee. For many months coffee was "safe" only at breakfast. However, there was a simple if idiotic way out of this. By ordering tea and coffee I got my milk. This gave me the following set-up at the table: coffee pot, hot water-jug, cream pot, tea-pot, hot water-jug, basin (which the English elegantly call "slop basin"), sugar bowl and pitcher of milk.

I moved from the Savoy to a mews. It was apparently built by an architect who thought a sliding rule was full scale or it was designed for midgets. It had no heat and it was only necessary to hold a glass to any wall to have it immediately filled with condensed water.

On departing from this dwelling I was introduced to a splendid source of income for landlords known as "dilapidations" charges. I received a little note from an attorney requesting me to pay for "destruction of one insect (deft) to a bronze lobster." To date, I have never met a bronze lobster and I certainly couldn't hurt its feelings.

I was also accused of leaving "muddy or smoke dirty markings" on the ceiling that hovers over the stairway. There were certainly times when I lived in my mews when I thought the world was upside down and I guess I got too liberal.

From the mews I went to elegant St. James Square. In the first week I mislaid my clothing coupons, a cigaret case and my ring. When I complained to the housekeeper she said with a sigh, "London's not the same since you foreigners invaded us."

So I hit the road again. This time to another mews, where life was fairly pleasant until a white Pekingese and a red kitten with a face like a frightened horse moved in.

I moved to my present residence. It has been blitzed and on a "noisy" night there is a movement suggesting earthquake tremors. It has no refrigerator, no hot water faucet in the kitchen and the rooms are heated by coal fire.

There are times when I think I am playing a duration game of checkers—and it's always my move!

Making Use of Leftovers

"BREAD BOXES": Hollow out squares of bread, toast and fill with creamed leftover meat and vegetables.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Associated Press Food Editor

You can give your family enticing meals with less cost in money and ration points if you

1—Plan different ways of making the best use of every scrap of food in your home larder.

2—Make full use of food by baking foods for several meals at once.

3—Carefully check point rationing values trimmed to meet your household needs and family food preferences. Shop with eye to future. Boneless meat cuts have little waste, so veal steaks, pork butt and lean lamb are good buys. Pork and veal shoulders can be boned (save bones for meat stock) and stuffed for a substantial main dish.

Money and shopping time can be saved by a careful daily inspection of the refrigerator for foods that can be used in palatable combinations as soups, main dishes, salads and desserts. Remember to use vegetable before they wilt or become stale. If a vegetable shows signs of wilting, trim off the wilted parts and reserve for soup stock. Cook up the vegetable, cool and store in covered jar for a meal in near future. Reheat the cooked food in a double boiler, covered dish in oven or in a steamer.

If you have a good-sized chicken for dinner (I find the larger chickens better investments), save out a couple of cooked pieces and have them at another dinner combined with savory sauce and cooked vegetables (fresh or leftover) for a sturdy main dish. Or the chicken can be put into gravy, thickened meat stock or soup and heaped up over a platter of steaming boiled rice, noodles or macaroni.

One of my best leftover tricks is this. Mix together 1 cup cooked ham, 1 cup chopped cooked pork or veal, ½ cup each boiled rice and soft bread cubes, 3 tablespoons each chopped onions, celery and green peppers (optional), ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon each paprika and poultry seasoning or sweet basil, and half a cup of milk. Bake 35 minutes in greased loaf pan in moderate oven. Serve this loaf hot or cold, plain or with any preferred sauce.

Buy a little extra meat at one time so that it will do for two or three meals. This saves shopping time and energy as well as cooking fuel and probably some ration points.

Whenever the oven is being used for an hour or more, bake foods that will keep for several days. Bake enough apples to serve warm as dessert for one meal, stuff extras with cheese, raisins and nuts and serve as a salad the next day.

Slip in a pan of prune bread for forthcoming lunches, and a pan of gingerbread mix or cottage pudding for future desserts. It takes only 15 minutes or so to bake a pan of cookies fashioned from ice box dough, to replenish your lunch box, dessert and "snack" supply.

School Pupils To Compete in State Poetry Competition

Pupils in the city, county and parochial schools as well as those throughout the state, will have an opportunity to test his or her talent in verse writing in a contest sponsored by the state department of education, D. T. Mills, county chairman, announced today. The contest will be featured as an Ohio Poetry Day observance and pupils interested in verse writing are urged to enter.

Pupils of high, junior high and elementary grades of both the public and parochial schools are eligible to compete. There will be no limitation as to length or type of poem, and the contest may be carried on in the local schools whenever convenient, although many schools are holding contests between Feb. 15 and April 15.

The poems are to be sent by the local school to the state department of education not later than May 1 where they will be judged by a committee to determine the winning poems for the county from which they came. Poems worthy of distinction will be published in the forthcoming brochure of Ohio Poetry.

Soldier in Pacific Sends Fourth War Loan Appeal

Marion county has a Fourth War Loan booster far out in the southwest Pacific. He is Capt. Paul W. Crim, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Crim of LaRue, who in a recent letter to his parents voiced the wish that everyone back home might be able to see first-hand the scope of the country's huge war effort, adding that a glimpse into any of the fighting areas would convince everyone at home they should buy war bonds to the limit of each person's ability. He added that men at the front found it difficult to share the optimism of persons at home regarding a possible early conclusion of hostilities.

SCHOOL SENIORS IN CITIZENSHIP TEST

Marion County Pupils Take Part in State Contest.

Students in the Marion county schools are among the more than 1,000 seniors who took the D. A. R. Good Citizenship test conducted yesterday in the schools under superintendents or other competent designated supervisors.

This year the tests for the contest were prepared by the teachers of social studies and by the economics in the Marion County schools with D. T. Mills, county superintendent, chairman of the state advisory Good Citizenship committee, acting as chairman. Tests included a list of questions with a selection of possible answers for each, and a section with answers to be written on designated themes, the whole dealing with American history, Ohio history, American government and other related subjects. New this year is a section in which the students were required to express their views on matters of courtesy and social usages.

The papers will be scored by the state advisory committee on Feb. 12 and the winner announced at a later date. ## War in Camp

CAMP LIVINGSTON, La. — Everything was very "hail fellow well met" with Privates Isaac Taylor and Henry Roberts when, landing in the same outfit here, they discovered they were neighbors in New York City. Until, that is, each showed the other a picture of the girl friend. It was the same girl.

Sweetbreads a Point Saver

By BETSY NEWMAN

Sweetbreads are a rich treat when I eat and also [illegible] ration [illegible]

MENU

Sweetbreads with Ham, Scalloped Potatoes, Cauliflower, Orange and Grapefruit Salad, Cake, Tea.

Sweetbreads with Ham

Three-fourth lb. sweetbreads, 1 qt. water, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. vinegar, ¼ c. flour, 2 tbsp. fat, ½ tsp. white pepper, ½ tsp. poultry seasoning, 6 tbsp. cream, [illegible]

If sweetbreads are not to be prepared immediately after purchase, they should be pre-cooked in water to which vinegar and salt have been added. Drain and remove any membrane. Roll in flour and fry in hot shortening, seasoned with pepper and salt. Remove to platter and keep hot. Pan-broil thick slice of ham or smoked baked or boiled ham and serve with sweetbread, a piece for each person or slice of ham.

Creamed Sweetbreads

Two pair sweetbread, 4 tbsp. drippings or margarine, 6 tbsp. flour, ½ tsp. salt, dash pepper, 1 c. milk, 1 c. cream or top milk, 2 egg yolks, ½ c. salted almonds.

Make sauce by melting fat, blending in flour and seasonings, and stirring in milk gradually. Add cream, bring it in slowly, also, add beaten egg yolks and cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce is thick and smooth. Season to taste. Add sweetbreads, heat in sauce and serve on toast, waffles, hot biscuits, or in patty shells or toasted roll cases, each sprinkled with a few salted almond meats.

BOISE, Idaho — "Diamond Tooth Lil," once a dance siren of San Francisco's Barbary coast, says she has willed to the Idaho Children's Home the gem that has gleamed in one of her front teeth for 36 years.

"When I die I want the tooth sold at auction and the money given to the children's home," said the 57-year-old woman, born Evelyn Finila in a town near Vienna, Austria.

Veal Stew Heads Wholesome Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN

I hope you like veal as well as I do. Some folk turn up their noses at it—not used to. Maybe they have been converted during these last two years.

MENU

Veal Stew with Celery and Noodles, Cauliflower, Hot Biscuits, Lettuce Salad, Steamed Pudding, Lemon Sauce, Coffee or Tea.

Veal Stew

One-eighth lb. salt pork, 2 lbs. veal breast, neck or shoulder, 2 c. water, 2 tsps. salt, 2 c. cut celery, 2 tb. pc. flour.

Cut salt pork in cubes and fry until brown, add veal cut in 2-inch cube, and brown well. Add water and salt, and simmer 1½ hours, closely covered. Add celery and continue cooking ½ hour. Thicken gravy with flour stirred in a little water. Serve with cooked noodles and garnish, if you wish, with tiny pickles.

Steamed Pudding

Two tbsp. shortening, 1 c. flour, 1 t.-p. soda, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. each cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg, 2 tsps. grated lemon peel, 1 c. sugar, 1 c. shredded raw carrot, 1 c. shredded raw potato, 1 c. dried fruit (raisins, apples or figs), 1 c. nuts.

Cream shortening, mix and sift dry ingredients and add to shortening; mix in remaining ingredients. Pour into greased pudding mold (2 qt. size) and steam 1½ hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

Electric Eye Winks at Alloy

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

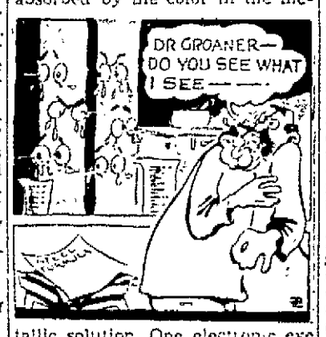
NEW YORK — The Bragg Naval Ordnance Laboratory at Sheffield, England, uses two electronic eyes to look for alloys in steel and one of them winks to tell how much there is.

The method is described in Monthly Science News, a British wartime scientific publication. The quality of steel for guns and many purposes depends on alloys such as manganese, chromium, molybdenum, vanadium, aluminum, nickel, copper or other minerals. One or more may be present in large amounts or only in traces.

These amounts have to be analyzed precisely. The Britons' method is new in that it makes use of fine drillings, filings and turnings as samples for analysis. Other methods, even the spectograph, required larger samples.

The Sheffield scientists dissolve the filings in acid, making a liquid containing steel and all the alloys. They add a chemical which causes one of the alloying metals to show its characteristic color. For example, manganese shows as violet.

Then they shine a colored light through the solution. The color chosen is one which will be partly absorbed by the color in the metallic solution. One electronic eye looks at this partly absorbed colored ray, while the other eye looks at similar rays coming through plain water, which absorbs none of the light.



One eye therefore sees less light than the other. The eye seeing the most light therefore closes partly by shutting down its iris diaphram. In effect it winks. It closes until it sees no more light than the other eye. The size of this wink measures the proportion of alloy the other eye sees.

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS BOY WINS SPEAKING CONTEST

Takes First Place in Prince of Peace Event.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2—Richard Anliot of Cleveland Heights yesterday won the state Prince of Peace declamation contest at the 25th annual Ohio pastors convention.

The 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Shure Anliot expressed surprise at the judges' decision, saying he was "overwhelmed."

Anliot's prize winning declamation was entitled "A Bag of Beans." A senior at Cleveland Heights High school, the youth never has taken speech courses but said he received "some private coaching." His victory over five other finalists gives Anliot a four-year college scholarship and $200 in cash.

Second prize of $100 and a two-year scholarship went to Wilbur Proctor, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Proctor of Ravenna. Robert Spayd of Dayton won third prize of $50 and a one-year scholarship.

Other contestants, each winning $10, were Dorothy Ann Hancock of New London; Gwynne Myers of Marietta and Robert Henderson of Ravenna.

Anliot hasn't decided what college he will attend, but may choose any one of these schools—Wittenberg, Marietta, Findlay, Ohio Northern, Hiram, Defiance, Ashland Wilmington, Bluffton or Otterbein.

TWO KINDS OF FUEL

By The Associated Press

EASLEY, S. C. — Pickens county Sheriff W. H. Maudlin made a thorough search of a suspected rum-runner's automobile, but it failed to reveal any illegal spirits.

"Let's look in his gas tank," he suggested finally.

One peek was sufficient. The tank had been divided cunningly into two compartments. One contained five gallons of gasoline, the other 10 gallons of whisky.

Chicken Brazilian Style

By ALICE DENHOFF

The [illegible] again in the same [illegible] with [illegible] on the [illegible] are delighted to suggest two Brazilian specialties when [illegible] turned from Bidu Sayao, [illegible] beautiful Brazilian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera. Being a Brazilian, which means that she [illegible] well acquainted with the kitchen and its arts, Bidu Sayao is keen about food and can discourse on it with typical South American gusto and interest.

She told us that both these recipes are extremely popular in her native country, and that they have made a hit wherever she has served them. We give you Bidu Sayao's Brazilian Canja, a wonderful chicken stew.

Chicken Canja

Choose a fat fowl, pluck, clean, and cut in pieces, salting lightly. Saute chopped tomato, onion and parsley in a little oil and put the pieces of poultry in it. Cover the stewpan tightly, but stir the contents frequently, so that the fowl will not only simmer but brown evenly. When well browned, add cooked rice and enough water to form a good broth. Cover saucepan tightly, leaving it to simmer over a low heat so that rice and fowl may blend well. When liquid has become absorbed by rice, the dish is ready, and chicken meat can then be separated from bones and put back in stew. Serves 6

Tasty Empadas

For a special delicacy to offer guests, the Met's Brazilian star suggests empadas, which are pastry shells filled with chicken and served hot or cold. To make empada crust put one cup flour in bowl, add 2½ tbsps. shortening and cut in. Add 3 eggs, ½ tsp. salt and knead well. In Brazil there is an especial empada mold that Miss Sayao uses, but here, she says, a fireproof baking dish [illegible] medium sized onion and fry in 2 tbsps. fat or [illegible] until soft but not brown. Add 2 cups chopped cooked chicken, 2 large chopped tomatoes, 1 tsp. salt, one teaspoon chopped hard-boiled egg, salt, pepper, sprig of parsley and ½ cup finely chopped mushrooms. Mix well and stew slowly.

MULE TAMING AN ART

COLUMBIA, S. C. — [illegible] of a state prison insists the ability of a Southern Negro to mule corn and fractious mule passed.

An unbroken mule which officials believed could be tamed, was turned over to Negro prisoners for a try.

The Negroes gathered the quivering, panic-stricken animal and talked steadily for a quarter of an hour quieting him.

The next day, Rush, [illegible] four men were needed to [illegible] the recalcitrant; the [illegible] only three; and by the [illegible] one man was plowing [illegible] mule.

Battle Areas Send in Praise for Jeep

By The United Press

PHILADELPHIA — Praise for the Army jeep, developed by the U. S. Quartermaster Corps, has become a daily occurrence in mail from the fighting fronts.

Col. Fred A. Middleton, chief of the Philadelphia Ordnance District, reports commanders from all theaters of war sing the glories of the spunky little vehicle that refuses to bog down in the jungles, the swamps, the deserts or inside the arctic circle.

No transportation problem is too difficult for the jeep. They take abuse from dawn to dark on the roughest of terrain, and company repair shops see to it that at no time is any repairable jeep kept out of action for any length of time.

Success of the jeep on the battlefront reflects the responsibility taken upon itself by the ordnance workers. Developed by the Quartermaster Corps, the job of producing, maintaining and supplying the sturdy little vehicle was transferred a year ago to the ordnance department.

Battle reports convince the ordnance workers they've done a good job in the preparatory work that helped the blitz buggy stand up under the crucial test of actual combat operations.

Confectioners in the U. S. made more than two and a half billion pounds of candy in 1943—about 20 pounds per person.

NOTES FROM THE CLUBHOUSE

WITH AP SPORTS WRITERS

By CHIP ROYAL

AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Memories are the greatest possession a person can have, a wise sage said. The nation's sports editors are finding it out as they dig deep into the past to fill AP Features latest order for the millions of sports readers.

It all started with this question: "What do you consider the three most outstanding achievements in American sports, and why?"

CORNELIUS WARMERDAM

At first, it doesn't sound like too much of a job to pick the top sport performances of all-time. Then you start to list them. More and more achievements come to mind and they become harder and harder to grade. Many you remember personally, others you have read about.

Let's see. There was Jim Corbett's defeat of John L. Sullivan, quite an upset, or so they tell us. Then there was T. P. Conneff's running of the mile in 1895 in 4:15.6, not to mention Sabin Carr of Yale who made the first 14 foot pole vault leap in 1927, and Cornelius Warmerdam, who is the only man to go over 15 feet.

Baseball had a lot of achievements. Christy Mathewson's pitching feats stand out as does the hitting and base stealing of Ty Cobb, the home run clouting of Babe Ruth, the amazing pennant surge of the 1914 Boston Braves, Lou Gehrig's 2,130 consecutive games, the New York Yankees' rule in baseball.

Gosh, there's no end to the baseball achievements. Another just cropped up in Cy Young's 500 major league victories. Then you can't forget Connie Mack's long record as a manager, Carl Hubbell's masterful pitching or Johnny Vandermeer's two no-hit, no-run games in a row.

A shoulder on-looker has just suggested Count Fleet's perfect record in 1943, Gertrude Ederle's achievement in swimming the English channel; Don Budge's winning of the British, French, American and Australian tennis championships within one year.

Oh, yes, Bobby Jones' golfing grand slam was really something when he won the U. S. Open and Amateur and the British Open and Amateur all in the same year, 1930.

Then we can't forget Red Grange's four touchdowns against Pennsylvania, Jack Dempsey's heavyweight record or Joe Louis's, for that matter.

Still others are:

Glenn Cunningham's remarkable running record after he was "crippled for life" as a child.

Jesse Owens's feat of breaking three world track and field records and tying another in the Big Ten championship of 1936.

Columbia's victory in the Rose Bowl game of 1934.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's Wimbledon tennis victory over Helen Jacobs after the latter led at 5-2 and match point.

The Cardinals' rout of the Yankees in the 1942 world series.

Greg Rice's 65 successive wins in distance races before Gunder Haegg defeated him.

Bill Wambsganss' unassisted triple play for Cleveland against Brooklyn in the 1920 world series.

Man o' War's racing record.

And there's many more.

What do you think were the three greatest all-time American sports achievements?

Third Fremont Coach Enters Armed Service

By The Associated Press

FREMONT, O., Feb. 3—Lester (Legs) Binkley, Ross High school football coach since 1940, was commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in the U. S. Navy yesterday to report to Princeton university Feb. 25. He became the third Ross High coach to enter the armed forces.

Iowa's Foes Find It Hard To Stop Ives and Danner

By The Associated Press

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 3—Basketball Coach Otto Harrison has employed a variety of his strategy in developing Iowa's sophomore and freshman stars—when the opposition marshalls its forces to stop one, the other jumps around the flank and runs wild.

It's the simple little maneuver, but the results have been exceptional—Iowa is the only undefeated major basketball team in the midwest.

Harrison developed his strategy during the early season when Dick Ives, 17-year-old speedster was the scoring threat.

When the "cage kids" opened their Western conference campaign against Minnesota, the Gophers threw up a defense aimed at checking Ives. They halted Ives, but paid little attention to 18-year-old Dave Danner who dropped in 31 points in two games.

Then Augustana college concentrated on Danner and Ives took up the basket-shelling to lead his mates to another win. In the first game with Illinois, the Illini stopped Ives—and Danner tossed in 21 points. In the second game the Illini shackled Danner—and Ives poured in 21 points.

The Illinois story was repeated, in the same order, in last weekend's series with Indiana and now the Hawkeyes hope it will work when they meet Chicago here Saturday with a record of 11 consecutive victories, six in conference competition. Chicago has lost 44 straight, but Harrison has cautioned the Hawks against complacency.

Outdoor Writers Out To Help Duck Hunters in Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 3—The boys who tell the tales will go to bat for frustrated duck hunters when the Outdoor Writers association meets here Feb. 21 to 23.

"For five years in Ohio, the main flight of ducks has arrived in December—after the season," said J. W. Stuber, association secretary. "The season in Ohio closed this year Dec. 3, and for the next two weeks inland lakes and southern water were black with ducks."

He said one of the main items on the program would be proposals to readjust federal waterfowl regulations.

The Outdoor Writers also will discuss the problem of how to enforce the ducks to come close enough to allow hunters to make a clean kill and recovery, Stuber said. This can be accomplished best by permitting the use of two live decoys or "callers" along with wooden decoys, he added.

Walsh Criticizes Rabbit Ball

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—The vitamin-filled "rabbit ball" the major leagues are using—now, there's something big Ed Walsh, the old Chicago White Sox pitcher, doesn't approve.

Walsh came to Chicago from his Meriden, Conn., home to be guest of honor at tonight's annual old-timers baseball banquet. He's carrying the torch for the outlawed spitball, wants it reinstated or the lively ball locked out.

"Only one in 20 pitchers can throw a real curve today," says the "Big Moose," who was drafted by the late Charles Comiskey for a mere $750 in 1904 and turned into an amazing 40-game winner four years later. "Put the spitball back in and let 'em get their curves with it. Or put a ban on this danged rabbit ball. This generation is getting too home-run conscious. The spitter acts just like a curve, just breaks more on the end."

The 195-pound master of the spitball will be 64 years old in May. He is one of baseball's all-time greats as well as all-time bargains and is confident he could win 50 games or so today despite the lively ball.

"Course, I couldn't step up on the mound and do it right now," he contends, with some restraint. "But if I had the arm I had back in the good old days. . ."

"I predict that when Ted Williams comes back," Walsh says, "he'll smash Babe Ruth's all-time record of 60 homers. Ted's about the most powerful snap hitter I've seen.

"It really took a punch to knock the so-called dead ball out of the park. But nowadays with the new thing they're using, a pitcher's record can be murdered—a gentle single has become a triple or a homer. Baseball is getting too home-run crazy. You'd think that was the only thrill in the game."

"HERE TONIGHT"

Dandy Davis, one of the country's most colorful matmen will be one of the six grapplers to take part in the battle royal at the Marion Armory tonight. The other five are such well known wrestlers as Jackie Nichols, Whitey Walbert, Tex Riley, Gil LaCross and Buddy Knox.

Davis, a Huston, Texas, grappler is one of the best wrestlers in the country, something on the order of Lord Landowne, wearing a robe that costs several hundreds of dollars, but once he takes the robe off, he is all man and packs the houses wherever he appears. 8:30 is the starting time. Prices, Gen. 50c, Ringside 65c and Kids 25c. Ticket sale at Markert & Lewis or call the Armory after six o'clock.—Adv.

WHAT A BATTLESHIP IS

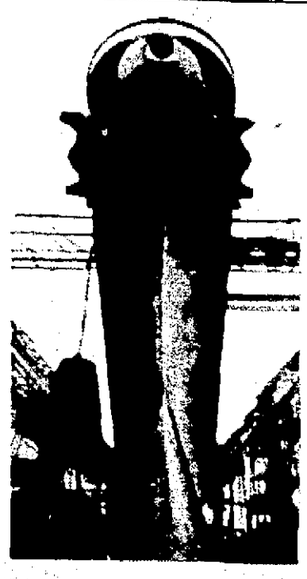
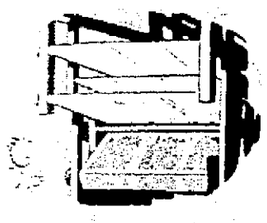
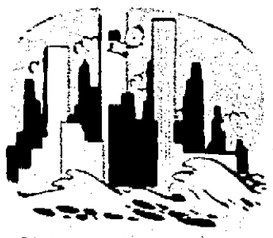
A MODERN BATTLESHIP is more than a ship, it is a city. The new U.S.S. Missouri pictured here, cost $100,000,000, or about the assessed valuation of a city of 140,000.



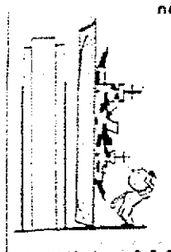
The Missouri's armaments, including 16-inch guns, make her the most powerful battle wagon afloat. Here are some other Navy specifications reduced to civilian terms.



BLUEPRINTS: 175 tons of them used enough paper to print 272,000 copies of a standard-sized 16-page newspaper.

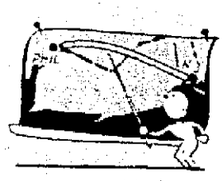


DISPLACEMENT: Its 45,000 tons will displace enough water at sea to flood about a sixth of the island of Manhattan.

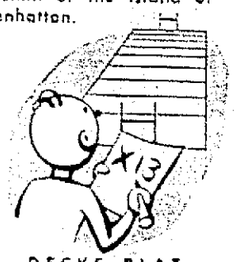


LENGTH: Its 880 feet would extend 30 feet above a 70-story building.

POWER PLANT: It generates enough to supply a city the size of Santa Fe, N. M.



PIPES: All the piping laid end to end would reach from New York to Philadelphia.



DECKS, PLATFORMS would cover more than 13 football fields.

ASKS COMBINED FOOD STUDIES

Speaker Wants Labor, Industry, Agriculture To Unite on Post-War Project.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 3—H. E. Babcock of Ithaca, N. Y., chairman of Cornell university trustees and of the New York state emergency food commission, called today for industry, labor and agriculture to join forces in a series of research projects designed to advance human welfare after the war.

He asserted in addressing concluding sessions of the national forecast council, sponsored by the Ohio development and publicity commission:

"A national committee of from 12 to 20 members to deal with the Land Grant Colleges association could easily break down into regional committees on the basis of four regional federal research laboratories.

"Out of the research they sponsor, industry may legitimately hope for things to manufacture and sell at a profit, labor for work and wages, and agriculture for a higher standard of living on the farm."

He cited quick-freezing and low temperature storage of foods as a project worthy of such joint study. "The production, processing and handling of frozen foods and their utilization in the American diet is a prolem in public welfare of the first order," Babcock asserted.

Joseph B. Hall of Cincinnati, vice president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., said quick-freezing "probably represents the method of processing foods that will see the greatest postwar development."

R. A. Boyer of Cincinnati, scientific director of the Drackett Co., reported soybeans ranking third among the nation's cash grain crop and that Ohio was in fourth place among states in total production.

Describing soybeans as the first source of protein fibers ever made directly from the vegetable world, Boyer asserted:

"Ohio has an imposing array of scientific talent, a highly industrial system, and an ability to produce enormous tonnages of soybeans. Effective cooperation between farm, factory, and the laboratory will establish Ohio as the industrial protein capital of the world."

Charles F. Kettering of Dayton, vice president of General Motors, said postwar plans should be flexible enough to meet unanticipated changes in future events. Any postwar plan should have at least six alternatives paralleling it, he declared.

Gov. Bricker stressed that private enterprise must provide jobs in the postwar era because, he asserted, government would be unable to create enough to provide work for everyone.

RUSSIAN GUERRILLAS REST—Russian guerrillas, operating behind German lines, relax in a forest hideout somewhere on the eastern front after a long march.

Examiners File Report on Crawford County

BUCYRUS, Feb. 3—With the exception of findings of a number of years back which are still delinquent, Ohio state examiners gave county officials nearly a clean slate in the report placed on file here this week.

Among the delinquent findings is one against the village of New Washington in favor of the county for $1,271.12 for road surface treatment.

Of other small findings, mostly in technicalities, $102.59 has already been adjusted. Findings of $881.45 to be adjusted on tax settlements were also among the findings made by examiners J. H. Attherholt and F. E. Wicks.

AT AUCTION

THE MODERN WAY OF ADVERTISING YOUR PUBLIC SALE

Let's pause a moment and think this thing out carefully.

Years ago public sales were advertised by signs tacked all over the countryside, and it cost quite a sum to have these signs printed and distributed and then, too, many bills were destroyed by wind, rain, etc., and that was money and labor wasted.

Now—you can save extra dollars by inserting your Sale Ad in The Star Want Ads because The Star goes into thousands of homes in and around Marion and these are the persons in whom you are interested.

Many auctioneers indorse newspaper advertising.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"OH! AUNT Madge!" Ronald whispered, and the faint words were a paean of happiness. Then I heard a little gasp from Carolyn on the other side of Noel, and realized that because of the great care which Crump and I had taken to keep our voices down, she had heard nothing of our colloquy and had not learned so far of Marion's presence in the restaurant.

Carolyn Gets Excited

But I could not understand why she had not recognized Marion's alert turn of the head as she looked at Lillian, or her voice, even through its artificial shrillness. Then, I reflected, that while Carolyn was superficially bright, even witty, she had not the mentality nor the sound observation possessed by Marion, true daughter of her mother, as, I reflected cynically, Carolyn was of Helena Brixton.

"Do you mean?" Carolyn began excitedly, and I leaned across Noel to answer her.

"Will you keep quiet?" I whispered sternly, "or will I have to take you out of here? You heard what I told Ronald, that a false move now might spoil everything, and showing excitement over this situation, is distinctly that kind of move."

"I won't utter another loud sound," Carolyn whispered back meekly, "but won't you tell me where Marion is?"

There was real affection, in her voice, and, I hoped, real contrition as well. I took the sternness out of my whisper, and smiled encouragingly at Carolyn.

Points Out Marion

"I'll tell you both," I said in low tones, but I saw Ronald's eyes go swiftly to the figure of Crump, taking our order, and knew that he was questioning my wisdom in speaking so freely before the waiter.

"It's all right, Ronald," I told him quickly. "This is the man who brought us the message from Marion when she was here before.

"Oh! I ought to have known you wouldn't talk without a reason," he said contritely, and as I smiled at him, I reflected that my good deeds for the day appeared to consist chiefly in easing the minds of the Brixton brother and sister.

"Never mind that now, Ronald," I said. "Our only concern now is to get Marion safely out of here, and for that reason, alone, you ought to know just where she is seated. You may have to rush to her side,. But remember," I tried to make my voice impressive, "you are not to make a single movement on your own, no matter what danger you may think she is in. You are to wait for orders.

Plans

"This affair is being conducted according to my father's well-laid plan," I went on, and he cannot afford to have it hampered by any injudicious aid, no matter how well meaning. I am sure you will understand."

I had no hope that he could understand, but I did not care. All I wanted, and I knew that I was simply voicing the sentiments of my father, was blind obedience to his plan.

Ronald surprisingly echoed my thought.

"If we can't understand, we can at least obey," he said. "You're with me on that, aren't you, Carol?"

"Oh definitely!" she said, and the over-used word grated on my nerves as much as did her too insouciant manner. She flitted from one mood to another all too swiftly, I told myself with irritation. One second she was wild with concern over Marion, the next she was brittle and flippant. But then, I acknowledged that I was nervous, "definitely," and that I would better pull myself together, and fight down the impulse to take out my annoyance on the girl.

Ronald Looks First

"Very well," I said. "Don't look now, but in a few seconds—or at a time not together—look at the table on the other side almost directly opposite to us, which has five occupants, three apparently oldish women, and two men. The one next the men is Marion. Now, Ronald, you've earned the right to take the first look. When I give you the word, Carolyn, you also may look over in that direction. But make it a casual glance, and look away again as quickly. Don't try to recognize Marion through her make-up. I don't think it can be done."

"I'll remember," Carolyn said as Ronald took advantage of my permission to take a look at the girl to whom he was betrothed. When he turned back to me, his eyes were shining, and I saw him grip the table hard, and knew that he was trying to still the trembling of his hands.

"Oh! This is marvelous!" he said. "To think that before this night is over, she'll be safely back with us."

"That's what we are hoping, Ronald," I told him, and then Noel spoke tensely.

"Trouble on the left!" he said. "Steve Redfield and Milner are cooking up something."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Good Habits in Child

I know of no department of medicine which has made more improvement than the science of treating and training children. A recent book called Modern Ways With Children, by Dr. Elizabeth B. Hurlock (published by McGraw Hill Book Company, New York), explaining the most up-to-date methods is therefore welcome.

It deals not so much with the technique of physical treatment—such as diet, bathing, clothing, teething—as with the management of the child's mind and emotions in regard to such fundamentals as growth, eating, sleep, speech, habits, discipline, clothes, etc.

About one of the problems which confront many mothers—food likes and dislikes, Dr. Hurlock says:

"Studies of food dislikes in children have revealed that vegetables and cereals top the list. Most children like meat, potatoes, bread, and desserts of all kinds; but when it comes to vegetables and cooked cereals, they revolt. In most instances, urging the child to eat some food 'because it is good for him' or 'will make him grow' is the basis of the trouble."

"Another offensive factor is the improper cooking of vegetables and cereals. Too often the flavor is sacrificed through poor taste flat because of overcooking or the use of too much water. In too many households the cereal is lumpy, and the child revolts against it not because of the taste but because of the texture."

"Now, a word about food that the child likes especially his 'favorite foods.' This is generally something that he is given only as special occasions and then in small amounts. The child likes it, not so much because of its taste as because of the circumstances under which it has been eaten. If he were allowed to select his own food, the chances are that he would have no marked taste likes or dislikes. He would, in time, learn to dislike food that was not good for him, because of the uncomfortable after effect. The chances are also that he would sooner or later learn to like food that is good for him because he would feel much better after eating it."

Here are the good habits of children:

"Eating habits, such as chewing with the mouth closed, good table manners, proper speed of eating, and adequate mastication of food before it is swallowed.

"Sleep habits, including going to sleep within a short time of retiring, relaxing instead of tossing around, waking at a set time, sleeping throughout the entire night, without having to get up to urinate, going to sleep without a light in the room or without a toy to play with in bed and sleeping without dreams of any sort.

"Punctuality in all routine activities, such as meals, getting up and going to bed, dressing, going to school, getting ready to go out to play with friends, or meeting others at planned times.

"Speech habits, as correct pronunciation and grammatical forms and a large enough vocabulary not to have to rely upon slang or the use of gestures.

"Cheerfulness as a habitual attitude, even under difficult circumstances.

"Courtesy to strangers, as well as to members of the family, regardless of class distinctions.

"Orderliness and care of personal possessions, including clothes, bathroom equipment, books, and playthings."

THE ASTRAL guidance offered herewith is for the attainment of major objectives if such must be attained with haste. Well-favored individuals may progress more rapidly than the ordinary cooperation of those in power and position permits. The zeal of professional people may be productive of best results in working with concerns not under private or private ownership. The cultivation of these persons by means of entertainment, speech or even romantic approach is likely to bear gratifying results. Costumes and bold strokes are penalized.

Those whose birthday it is are in the ascendancy this year of considerable accomplishments, with superior ventures and audacious initiative assisting to advanced goals. In this regard those born in June places is assured, in both private and public affiliation. In which friendship, good feeling and verbal facility may be pushed to profitable advantage. Cultivate personal prestige and popularity and good relationships may loom large with attendant increase in monetary or collaborations problems. Do not complicate such by selfish or impetuous emotional outbursts.
